COURT TO RULE ON GUILT OF BOOZE BUYER

Question of Conspiracy to Violate Law Big Prohibition Controversy

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1930, by Post Pub. Co.

Washington—(AP)—Is the purchaser of intoxicating liquor guilty of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law?

The department of justice has filed with the supreme court of the United States a petition for an appeal from a recent decision in a lower court to the effect that the purchaser was not guilty.

The facts of the case are not unlike thousands of other transactions, except that the order of purchase included a order to transport from Philadelphia to New York.

The district court held that a conviction may be had of a buyer and seller for conspiracy where the agreement is that the delivery of the liquor sold "is to be effected by transportation from the seller to a purchaser by a bootlegger located at a distance, when followed by transportation, delivery and payment, is sufficient evidence of such an agreement.

But the circuit court reversed the lower tribunal by declaring that the purchaser could not be found guilty of conspiracy to transport, arguing that under the eighteenth amendment "the purchase of liquor is not an offense" and that the indictment of a purchaser for conspiracy with a seller "is an attempt to make the purchaser indirectly liable for an act which congress has refused to make an offense."

CANT ACCUSE BUYER

The circuit court further contended that in the case of buyer and seller, transportation by the seller is a "mere incident of the sale" and that a charge of conspiracy could not be made against the purchaser for that phase of the transaction. The circuit court held that "the degree of cooperation to constitute one a conspirator must be more than that involved in the mere aiding and abetting of the commission of the substantive offense."

The government takes the position, however, that the case involves a conspiracy to transport and that it did not argue that the offense was a

ORDERS ALCOHOL FOR VARNISHES DENATURED

Washington—(AP)—Instructions that alcohol used in making varnishes and lacquers must be further denatured were issued today by Prohibition Commissioner Doran.

It had been reported to the commissioner that ethyl alcohol used in manufacture of varnishes and lacquers was being converted by bootleggers and used for beverage purposes.

The new orders provide that to every 100 gallons of ethyl alcohol, there must be added four gallons of denatured wood alcohol and ten gallons of normal butyl alcohol, or refined fuel oil or amyl alcohol.

Alcohol said that thought the new ingredients would end the conversion.

Rome Cheers Next Queen Of Italians

Marie Jose of Belgium Given Warm Welcome as Special Train Arrives

Rome—(AP)—Premier Mussolini, representative in his premier's uniform of dark blue, gold lace braid, and white plumed hat, was the first caller at the Quirinal palace today to present best wishes to Princess Marie Jose and Crown Prince Humbert who will be married Jan. 8.

The reception took place in the throne room where the crown prince and his fiancée were waiting with their parents and members of the Italian and Belgian courts.

Once the premier and his ministers had taken their places a delegation of the Fascist grand council presented an address of homage written in fifteenth century Italian on parchment and enclosed in a richly-wrought leather case decorated with crowns and the symbolic Victor's rods.

The 23-year-old princess arrived yesterday by special train with her parents and brothers from Brussels. Hundreds of thousands of Romans along the route cheered as she was driven with her betrothed from Central station to the Quirinal palace.

At the palace she, her father, King Albert, her mother, Queen Elizabeth, the Italian Royalties, and Prince Hubert came twice to a balcony in response to tribute of the crowd.

The princess and Prince Humbert later came three more times and bowed before the tumult of their welcome was stilled.

Below them the crowd jammed so that women grew hysterical and others fainted. Once they broke through a cordon of infantry and an officer drawing his sword to order his men to reform accidentally cut one of the spectators.

Arrival of the wedding party fell on Defana eve—eve of Epiphany. The Romans saw a smiling girl with curly chestnut hair and a radiant healthy complexion for which her countrywomen are noted. She wore a white hat, a white mire dress trimmed with white fox fur, and over it a fur bordered beige

Taft Quits Work To Obtain Rest

Chief Justice Not Seriously Ill, Family and Associates Declare

Washington—(AP)—Chief Justice Taft's family and his associates on the supreme court bench in a prepared statement today said Mr. Taft's illness was not serious.

Mr. Taft will undergo a week's treatment in a Washington hospital, it was said, and then would go to Asheville, N. C. for two or three weeks. The statement follows:

"The chief justice recently has been subjected by his work and by the illness and death of a brother to an unusual strain. This has led to a recurrence of a bladder trouble which occurred four years ago and was then rather promptly relieved by treatment.

"The trouble is not regarded by his physician, Dr. Hagner, as serious but only as requiring treatment to avoid discomfort. The chief justice, acting under Dr. Hagner's advice, is going to Garfield hospital in Washington for a week's treatment, and is then going to Asheville, N. C. for rest and recuperation for two or three weeks and is then expecting to return to his work.

"The doctor expects him to be in good working condition."

WINTRY WEATHER HITS PACIFIC NORTHWEST

Portland, Ore.—(AP)—Swept over the Cascade mountains from the east by a cold wind, rain and snow today combined to give the Pacific northwest the first taste of real winter and in southern Oregon tore down miles of telegraph and telephone lines, interrupted rail and stage traffic and spread a blanket of snow over the highlands.

Scattered reported indicated the district between Glendale and Grants Pass, Ore., suffered the brunt of the storm. The Southern Pacific's Shasta limited, northbound, ran five hours late after encountering a snow and land slide in Cow Creek canyon on the north slope of the Siskiyou mountains.

Donnellson, Ill.—(AP)—Charles C. Mansfield, 65, president of the State Bank of Donnellson, shot and killed himself in his home here yesterday, 24 hours after the bank had been closed by the board of directors.

The bank was closed because of frozen assets, due to loans on farm lands. He is survived by his widow, a daughter, and six sons.

SEEK CAUSE OF FATAL BLAST IN FREMONT SHOP

W. D. Hazen Dies Here from Injuries Suffered on Saturday

Waupaca authorities have started an investigation into the cause of the accident at Fremont Saturday morning when a quarry drill exploded killing W. D. Hazen, 70, formerly of North Ford du Lac and formerly William Herrick, 31, Fremont, owner of the blacksmith shop who now is in St. Elizabeth hospital suffering loss of an arm.

Theories have been advanced that the drill which was to be used for work at Readfield, was hollow and might have been filled with nitro glycerine or that dynamite caps might have been placed in it for safe keeping. The investigation is being held to determine if and how the explosives were placed in the drill without the blacksmith being informed. District Attorney L. D. Smith, Waupaca, has secured bits of the drill found about the blacksmith shop and is taking them to Madison for examination to determine the cause of the explosion.

VISITING AT FREMONT

Hazen was visiting relatives in Fremont and was in the habit of going down to the blacksmith shop mornings, to help. Pieces of steel from the exploding drill fracturing his skull and penetrated the right side of his face. The roof and walls of the blacksmith shop were peppered full of holes by the flying steel. Fire started after the explosion but was extinguished by townspeople who rushed to the building.

Herrick's arm was amputated immediately after being brought to the hospital here and his condition Monday noon was considered very satisfactory. He is married and has six children.

Funeral services for Hazen will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon from the Holly undertaking parlors, Waupaca, with burial in Lakeside cemetery.

He is survived by the widow; two daughters, Mrs. M. E. Kopp, Highland Park, Ill., and Mrs. John Eutson, Fremont; two sisters, Mrs. John McCalla, Mount Vernon, O., and Mrs. John Beckhoff, Hunt Station, O.; and seven grandchildren.

SENATOR ACTS TO CURB SOUTHERN RADIO STATION

Washington—(AP)—The Federal Radio commission and the attorney general were asked in the senate today by Senator Dill of Washington, to stop the broadcasting of "obscene language" by Station KWKK at Shreveport, La.

Dill had read a telegram from L. J. Watrous of Minneapolis, Minn., in which a complaint against the station was made, and then expressed the opinion that if the radio commission believed it had no authority to prosecute, the attorney general had such power under the general provisions of the radio act.

"It would seem," the Washington senator said, "that public interest alone would justify the stopping of this broadcasting. The law makes it a crime to use profanity on the air."

The station is operated by W. K. Henderson, who is an outspoken opponent of chain stores.

Says Shakespeare Gained Glory Due Francis Bacon

Former Printer Believes Bacon's Illegitimate Birth Robbed Him of Rights

Sacramento, Calif.—(AP)—After a year of investigation in England, J. Edward Morgan, until recently proprietor of a printshop in Oakland, has arrived at the conclusion that glory rightfully due Francis Bacon has been thrown to William Shakespeare by English scholastic circles because of royal politics and a prudish antipathy for a man of illegitimate birth.

Morgan, it was announced yesterday in Stratford-on-Avon, the home of Shakespeare, is returning to the United States with what he believes is conclusive proof that Bacon has been made the scapegoat of a significant literary fraud.

A not unknown writer of verse himself, Morgan has for years been interested in the theory of the Baconian authorship of the plays attributed to the bard of Avon, and his culminating investigation of the speculation led him to sell his printshop to obtain funds.

Morgan has obtained enlarged photographs of the bindings and pages of the original folios, and asserts that in the very decorations, pictures and letterings of the script Bacon wrote his name many times over.

His son, Walter Morgan of Sacramento, chief of the division of research and statistics of the state department of education in California, said today that his father believes Bacon's illegitimate birth was the cause of his denial of literary recognition.

Young Morgan said his father had found that Bacon, in some of his cryptic writings, laid claim to a right to the English throne, based on an alleged relationship to Queen Elizabeth; Mary, Queen of Scots, or Lady Jane Grey. The elder Morgan believes, said his son, that Bacon's claim to royal blood and to the right of succession threw the weight of argument over the disputed plays to Shakespeare.

"This," young Morgan declared, "would account for the British rejection my father encountered in his studies abroad, so far as Bacon's claims were concerned. Many persons in England who have studied the Shakespeare-Bacon theory in all its ramifications assured my father they believed him on the right track but said they dared not publicly admit it."

Man Burned To Death In Explosion

His clothing ignited when a can of kerosene exploded in his home at Waupaca, John Batten, 35, was burned to death shortly before 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The body was found in the back yard a short time later by J. Jones, a neighbor. Batten, who lived on Pine street, his wife, was alone at the time. The explosion occurred as he was attempting to start a fire in a stove.

With his clothes aflame, the aged man rushed outside, but fell to the ground, exhausted and helpless. His clothes were burned off his body.

The explosion also set fire to the kitchen. This blaze was extinguished, however, before it has spread. Batten is survived by the widow; three daughters, Mrs. Korotsev of Neenah, Mrs. Walter Cragg of Oshkosh, and Mrs. Arnold Hesse of Fredonia; and one son, Glenn, Waupaca.

The funeral will be held at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning at Holby's funeral home, Waupaca. The Rev. G. N. Doody will conduct the service. Burial will be in Lakeside cemetery.

MILLIONS INVOLVED IN INHERITANCE TAX RULING

Washington—(AP)—Millions of dollars and many individuals were affected today by a supreme court holding that the difference in value in securities at the time of death and the value at the time of sale of such inherited property constituted taxable income. The test case was brought by E. Franklin Brewster from western New York.

Brewster had appealed from a ruling of the internal revenue commissioner who had been sustained by lower courts.

He insisted the tax should be levied only on the difference in value at the time he received the securities and the time of sale, holding considerable time had elapsed since his father's death and the time securities actually came into his possession.

The point has been raised in a number of cases involving large sums of money.

KANSAS IS NOMINATED FOR COSTA RICO POST

Washington—(AP)—Charles C. Elmerhart of Kansas, was nominated today by President Hoover to be minister to Costa Rica.

Arthur Schoenfeld, recently appointed minister to Costa Rica, has resigned from the diplomatic service.

The resignation was announced today by Undersecretary Cotton who said that the department regretted losing Mr. Schoenfeld but hoped that he would later return to the service.

Schoenfeld until recently was general secretary of the Bolivia-Paraguay commission, and previously was minister to Bulgaria.

Mr. Schoenfeld, who is at present in New York city, plans to enter business.

NEW CLEW IN FILM COLONY MURDER CASE

Former Jail Inmate Says Chinese Prisoner Admitted Part in Murder

Chicago—(AP)—Details of a conversation in a Los Angeles jail between two cellmates—one a Chinese—that may have a connection with the murder of William Desmond Taylor, movie director, were sent to Los Angeles police today by Coroner Herman N. Dundesen.

Recently a Chicago business man disclosed to the coroner that one of his employees was the cellmate of the Chinese. He gave the employee's statement to the coroner; it read:

"The Chinese was called out for questioning and when he returned the police were going to question him about the Taylor murder, but they only asked him about being caught carrying a revolver. He told me he had been planted in Taylor's home to kill him because Taylor had difficulties with the narcotic interests. The Chinese said he was connected with the opium traffic and he was paid $1,000 to kill Taylor."

The employee, who was in jail on a liquor charge at the time, said he believed the name of the Chinese was Harry Lee, alias Harry Young and said he has heard since that Lee was in the San Quentin penitentiary.

Coroner Dundesen said he sent the information for what it is worth in the investigation into the Taylor slaying, still a mystery after several years.

FIFTY MEN ESCAPE DEATH IN GREEN BAY

Leave Ice Floe Just in Time To Avoid Being Carried Into Lake

Menominee, Mich.—(AP)—Fifty fishermen, who cheated death on Green Bay only a few minutes, today recounted details of their experience to friends who had watched from the shore.

Trapped on a huge floe, as the ice broke up, they came safely ashore just in time to avoid being swept into Lake Michigan.

Hundreds of men and all the fishing equipment was carried away as the men abandoned it in their dash to safety.

The breakup occurred shortly after noon Sunday two miles off shore. Heralded by a rumbling and creaking of the ice, a crack appeared along a 15-mile front. Twenty-five of the men rushed for the shore at once. Some of them had to swim to bridge the rapidly widening gap.

The other 25 remained behind, believing the crevasse would close. When it did not, seven of them jumped on a skid carried by George Grabowski and drawn by horses.

With the ice breaking under them, they raced eight miles north to Hayward bay point where there still was a chance to get ashore.

Almost all the boats in the little settlement of Inauquation, near the point, near the point of the breakup, had been put away for the winter.

With the wives and children of the fishermen still on the ice, standing on the shore and entreating aid, a sail started north. It brought off most of the men. A small boat accounted for those remaining.

Today there was hardly a fragment of ice in Green bay. Weakened by the sudden thaw, it had been swept out through Death's door.

DEFICIENCY ESTIMATES ARE SET AT 61 MILLION

Washington—(AP)—President Hoover today submitted to congress supplemental deficiency estimates totaling $1,853,230 which brings the total submitted for the session of congress to more than $100,000,000.

There were three estimates, effective practically all at once, of branches of government, as follows: Agriculture department, $37,443,600; war department, $7,958,000; commerce department, $6,646,400; treasury department, $2,570,320; justice department, $2,144,270; navy department, $1,977,762; interior department, $634,270; interior, $563,824; district of Columbia, $56,000; postoffice department, $55,475; bureau of Indian affairs under the interior department, $458,614; state department, $458,614; capital architect, $56,325; United States Geological survey, $24,000; and a second supplemental estimate for the commerce department of $37,535.

WOULD EXTEND POWER OF NATIONAL BANKS

Washington—(AP)—A bill to authorize national banks to establish or acquire branches within the limits of the respective reserve districts was introduced today by Representative Leedy, Republican, Maine.

Liquor War Started In Eau Claire

Eau Claire—(AP)—Bootleg warfare made its appearance in Eau Claire last night, and today police searched for three men who used guns and tear gas to hijack a cargo of alcohol.

A fourth man, confessed member of the gang, was in jail and had made a complete statement of his part. In the hospital, seriously wounded, was Paul Barton of Durand, Wis.

As police reconstructed the story, a man named Ed Black and called head of the high-kim gang, ordered a consignment of alcohol from Watertown, Wis., deliberately arranging to take it by force on arrival here on short notice.

Barton and another bootlegger drove up last night with 450 gallons. As they stopped near a house on Main street, two Black's men sprang on them and held them up. Barton was taken in the house. Resistances attempts to keep him quiet, he started a general brawl and then rushed to the street.

Tear gas bombs were hurled into Barton's face to balk his efforts to shoot his captors. The companion escaped, amid an exchange of a dozen shots. One pierced Barton's shoulder.

Meanwhile Kenneth Crum of Elmwood, Wis., admittedly one of the Black "gang," became frightened as his companions fled, and remained with the wounded man. When he took him to the hospital, he was arrested.

Police found Barton's car with 150 gallons of the load still in it.

BROOKHART WARS ON SHORT SELLING

Also Wants to License Corporations in Interstate Trade, Limit Income

Washington—(AP)—Bills to create a new federal reserve cooperative banking system, to prohibit short selling on stock and grain exchanges, and to license corporations engaged in interstate commerce were introduced today by Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa.

The bill to license corporations would limit earnings to 5 per cent of the capital investment and would provide that excess profits be turned over to the treasury department.

Licensing would be imposed by the Federal Trade commission after statements of investment, earnings, transactions, gross and net earnings and salaries of managing officers were filed.

Short selling on the exchanges would be made unlawful by forbidding the use of mails to communicate having to do with orders and payments.

The federal inkling bill would make the federal intermediate credit banks a part of the cooperative system.

BRINGS ABOUT ARREST OF GUNMEN ABDUCTORS

Chambersburg, Pa.—(AP)—W. S. Schultz, 39, of East Liverpool, Ohio, ended a long drive as the involuntary chauffeur for three Philadelphia youths here early today by turning the tables on his captors and bringing about their arrest on charges of highway robbery.

The men, Peter Capone, Joseph Carciadue and Jake Abuzia, were said by police to have admitted holding up Schultz and forcing him to drive them here from East Liverpool.

A break in traffic here gave Schultz his means of escape. A motorcycle policeman rode abreast the car as it was delayed by traffic lights and Schultz shouted for help.

The motorcycle policeman covered the occupants of the car with his revolver and took them to headquarters. Schultz said he was going to work yesterday afternoon when his car was stopped by the wreckage of another machine which blocked the highway. The three youths appeared on that day with a revolver, forcing him to drive on. When gas and refreshments were needed, he added, they took $10 from him.

UTAH MAN ARRESTED FOR THREE MURDERS

Farmington, Utah—(AP)—First degree murder charges will be filed today against DeForest Green, 20, for the slaying Saturday night of his young wife, her mother and her step father.

Green, who was arrested in Ogden, Utah, in a farm house, after the slaying, admitted, officers said, that he shot the three because of marital troubles.

The shooting took place on a farm east of Layton, Utah, six miles north of here, where Green's wife had gone to see her mother after a family quarrel.

RECOGNIZE FREEDOM OF INDIA, BLAINE ASKS

Washington—(AP)—A resolution asking early recognition of the independence of India by the United States was introduced today by Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin.

The resolution provided that the senate pledge its constitutional support to the president of the United States "whenever he may deem it proper to recognize the sovereignty and independence of India."

In offering the resolution, Blaine said at a later date he intended to discuss the subject, along with the pleas for Philippine independence and the relation of both to the naval expansion about to convene in London.

THREE MAJOR ISSUES FACED BY CONGRESS

Prohibition and Naval Disarmament Share Stage With Tariff Measure

CAPITAL EYES VOTERS

Members Looking Forward to November Elections as They Resume Work

Washington—(AP)—Faced with the incomplete tariff bill, the controversy over prohibition and a host of other questions that may necessitate their remaining at work until summer, the house and senate reconvened today after a recess over the Christmas-New Year holiday season.

The tariff bill was the unfinished business in the senate and leaders apparently were determined to press its consideration at every opportunity.

In the house, a few minutes after Speaker Longworth's gavel called the chamber to order, the appropriation committee formally reported the annual army supply bill providing maintenance for the next fiscal year of the present standing army which has an enlisted strength of 118,760 men.

The house then received the resignation of Representative John Carey, for years leader in the house of the New York Tammy delegation, who had accepted appointment by Gov. Roosevelt to the New York supreme court bench.

In 14 minutes from the time it convened, the house adjourned over or respect of the late Representative Leatherwood, Republican, Utah.

BILL HAS CLEAR TRACK

The senate returned to consideration of the year old tariff issue with all factions agreed that it be given exclusive right of way until settled. Chairman Smead of the finance committee, called up the pending measure and debate was resumed on the wool schedule where it left off before the Christmas recess.

Upon conclusion of revision of the wool levies, leaders hoped that the controversial sugar rates would be settled, leaving but few major disputes before final passage.

After the chairman, the Rev. Z. B. Phillips, had offered prayer, Senators Smead of Utah and Simmons of North Carolina, the rival Republican and Democratic leaders in the grueling tariff struggle, met in the center aisle and grasped hands.

The opening minutes were devoted to the receipt of miscellaneous business, including numerous petitions.

Senator Heflin of Alabama, put into the record the speech of the chairman of the Democratic meeting at Birmingham, Ala., last Friday.

Heflin had been barred by the Alabama State Democratic committee from running in the Democratic primary for that party's nomination in the next election and today he said the press had printed "garbled accounts" of the Friday meeting.

Within a few minutes the senate adopted a resolution by Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, the chairman of the military affairs committee to authorize a joint congressional committee to study the pay of enlisted personnel of the army, navy, coast guard and geodetic survey. It was sent to the house without debate.

The recess over, the holiday season had failed to clarify the complex situation confronting it and, in one respect, the problems had been multiplied by the unheralded flare up of the anti-union movement which had initiated on Christmas eve by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, a filibuster in the ranks of the drys.

The house miscellaneous bills on the calendar had the legislative night of war but interest also was directed to the report by the appropriations committee of the annual army supply measure, carrying funds for the regular army summer and fall months. The machinery was thoroughly attuned to business and with the exception of a few contests such as the filling of committee posts, there was nothing to delay the regular operation of both houses.

Of the committee contests, that of Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., for a post on the powerful senate finance committee, attracted widespread attention. LaFollette's father, whose name was known throughout the nation, served as its chairman.

Beyond these questions, however, lay the forthcoming elections, in which all of the house and one-third of the senate must be chosen. The election was without precedent before many months with primary campaigns in several states and these always serve as a lively prelude to the campaigns to come in the late summer and early fall.

Usually regular sessions do not get down to work until immediately after New Year's day, but this year much of the preliminary work was done in the early spring, and the senate was thoroughly attuned to business and with the exception of a few contests such as the filling of committee posts, there was nothing to delay the regular operation of both houses.

WANT MIRRORS TO SHOW HOW CADETS LOOK ON HORSES

Washington—(AP)—West Point cadets would be provided with mirrors to show them how they look on horseback under a request to the house war department appropriations subcommittee.

Major General William R. Smith superintendent of the academy, asked for funds to install mirrors in the riding hall to enable the cadet "to see what he looks like on his horse, and get an idea of what he is doing."

"Sometimes," he added, "you can tell him about it but he cannot see it himself very well."

U. S. Arms Delegates To Insist On Original Program

WANT TREATY APPROVED BY 5 SEA POWERS

Also Told to Work for Limitation of Every Type of War Vessel

Washington—(AP)—The basic considerations which are to guide American diplomacy at the London naval conference, now definitely established after weeks of preparation, are directed unwaveringly toward the original ideal of a treaty signed by all five of the great sea powers, limiting every type of war ship.

President Hoover's final consultations with the American delegates, who leave next Thursday for London, are taking into account the obstacles which have arisen since the pre-conference discussions began, but in no case are these obstacles recognized as insurmountable.

In its present quite definite form, the plan to be followed by the delegation looks hopefully toward French signature of the proposed treaty, despite indications from Paris that she is hesitating to take so positive a commitment. Disclosure over the weekend that the French statesmen are willing at least to limit construction in the near future is taken here as a most promising sign after the recent strong pronouncement of French national policy. The Americans will go to London holding to the faith that it will be possible to translate this promise into actual treaty terms.

The American plan also forces a way of adjusting the cruiser demands of Japan on a basis satisfactory to all concerned, and it also takes account of the troublesome details of parity between the United States and Great Britain, which have been reduced to terms regarded as mutually acceptable.

PLAN IS FEASIBLE
Neither President Hoover nor members of the delegation have gone the length of supposing, however, that they can draw up beforehand a scheme of procedure guaranteed to meet all difficulties. The plan of the delegation is flexible enough to permit of adjustment to the changing contour of the negotiations. The delegates will communicate freely with the White House as the conference proceeds, and Mr. Hoover himself will remain in a position to guide instantly the important decisions of American policy.

Such parting guidance as the president can give at the present stage will be imparted to the delegates tomorrow at a White House breakfast. The delegation will leave Washington Thursday morning on a special train for New York, and will sail that afternoon on the steamer George Washington. That will mean three days in London before the conference meets two weeks from tomorrow—a period Secretary Stimson as head of the delegation, proposes to turn to advantage in personal consultation with representatives of Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy.

Formally opening the negotiations for the United States at the first session on Jan. 21, Mr. Stimson will speak in general terms of the great expectations of his government for naval limitation and the advancement of peace. He will expound no diplomatic bombshell, as Secretary Hughes did in opening the Washington conference in 1921. Instead, he will counsel a patient examination of the whole field of possibilities before an effort is made to draft definite agreements.

DEFINITE LINES OF POLICY
In the succeeding discussions, the American delegation will be expected to follow certain general lines of policy, laid down after weeks of consultation here. They include:

Sincere invocation of the Kellogg treaty, outlawing war, not as an absolute guarantee of security, but as a moral commitment to frank and open dealing around the conference table.

Non-involvement in the purely European aspects of the discussion, and avoidance of any proposal which would put enforcement of the conference decisions into the hands of the league of nations.

Retention of the battleship as the backbone of the American navy, at least for the present, but with battleship construction sharply restricted pending the next conference in 1936.

Maintenance of an American cruiser strength based on the necessity of protecting the nation's developing trade routes.

A holiday in building destroyers to replace those which are passing beyond the age of usefulness.

As drastic a restriction of the submarine as other nations will accept.

It will be for Secretary Stimson and his colleagues to clothe these general principles with practical details as the negotiations proceed. Even in this direction, however, much already has been done, and more will be attempted in daily consultation among the delegates during the eight-day trip across the Atlantic.

SLAYS FATHER AND TRIES TO KILL MOTHER

University of Illinois Student Is Held For Mental Observation

St. Louis—(AP)—Obsessed with a desire to kill, Alan R. Schumm, 17-year-old University of Illinois freshman, shot his father, William Schumm, 42, to death and wounded his mother, Mrs. Fayette Schumm, 49, in their home here early yesterday. Police believe he was under temporary mental derangement caused by over-absorption in his studies. He is being held in the observation ward at City hospital.

Returning home from a party, Schumm retired to a bathroom. He stayed so long his father asked him if he was sick. The older Schumm had just returned to bed after his son answered in the negative when the youthful student asked his parents to come into the living room.

"Do you believe in God?" Alan asked.

"Certainly," his father answered. "Then pray," the son commanded. His parents, puzzled by his extraordinary remarks, did not comply and the son drew a revolver and began shooting.

The older Schumm died almost instantly but the youth's mother ran into the kitchen and her son followed her. She disarmed him and tossed the pistol away, running to a neighbor's apartment where she found she had been wounded twice in the hip. The student called a family friend, told him what he had done, and then picked up the revolver and left in his father's automobile. He tossed the weapon into the Mississippi river and went to the friend's house, where he was persuaded to await police.

Questioned about the slaying, Schumm said he was dominated by the thought of killing and was determined to slay his parents and anyone else who attempted to interfere. He borrowed the weapon, saying he wanted it for target practice.

His mother, from her hospital bed, told police Alan had been acting queerly recently and had shown a strange interest in the religious beliefs of persons he knew.

He was regarded as a "model" student at Illinois while he had been an honor one at the local high school where he graduated last June.

LAY SLAYING TO LIQUOR RACKET

Body of Unidentified Youth Found in Blazing Automobile on Highway

Steger, Ill.—(AP)—The liquor racket was blamed today for the death of a youth whose burning body was found yesterday sprawled inside a flaming automobile.

Two highway policemen, patrolling a road near Steger, a Chicago suburb, heard an explosion and saw the glow from the pyre, half a mile across the countryside. Hastening there, they found the crematory fire outside Haweswood, the estate of Joseph L. Hawes, Chicago manufacturer.

Inside the sedan was the body, piled on eight five-gallon cans, rivulets of flaming alcohol trickled from the cans across the roadway.

Identification of the body was impossible as the head and shoulders were badly burned; of the clothing the youth wore, only a remnant of a denim coverall was left. Claws were few—six keys on a ring and an engine number provided police with the best chances to solve the mystery.

Police believe the youth was dead before burned; they pointed to his cremation as intended to be a warning to others who might encroach on the gangland preserves of rivals.

A post-mortem disclosed a bullet wound in the back of the head while in the roadway, close behind the ear, was a patch of blood. In reconstructing the bizarre crime, police believe the youth was pulled from the car by his rivals and shot to death; then the car clothing were saturated with gasoline and alcohol and the body

Stuffy head colds clear up quickly—coughing is stopped in two or three minutes—and even severe colds treated in the hospital have disappeared in a day or so—when ended at home by a method now advised by hospital physicians as a result of extensive tests.

Nose Cleared Up—Head Cold Quickly Ended

The case of J. R. Hayes is typical. Mr. Hayes contracted a stuffy head cold while sitting near an open window in a street car. In spite of the different preparations he used, the cold grew worse—spreading from his nose down into the breathing passages.

Then he called on the hospital clinic for advice. Doctors there gave him Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a concentrated mixture of ingredients which hospitals have found to be the quickest to end colds. With the first swallow he felt its comforting, healing warmth—trough nose passages deep down into his chest. Relief began instantly and in a day or so the cold was completely gone.

Soon Back at School—Rid of Threatening Cold

Still another of the many grateful users of Cherry Pectoral, is Mrs. William P. Martin whose 10 year old daughter, Alice, was kept from school by a severe cough and cold that brought fear of pneumonia.

Doctors ordered the child to bed, with double strength doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral every half hour until relief came—then once every hour until the cold disappeared.

Next day she looked like a different child. In another day or so all traces of the cough and cold had disappeared and she was back in school as well as ever.

BETTER FOOD REDUCES NUMBER OF DESERTERS

Washington—(AP)—Better food is credited by General Charles F. Smith, general chief of staff, with resulting in a decreased desertion rate in the army.

Testifying before a house appropriations sub-committee on the war department's annual supply bill, he said the decrease in the desertion rate from 1.39 per cent in 1925, before the present ration was established, to 5.29 per cent in 1929, was "very largely due to better feeding and care of the men."

"The prospective housing program also contributed to the lowered rate of desertion," he added, "because where men were not well housed, they knew they were soon going to be housed." The improved ration, he continued, will cost about 51 1-2 cents a day in 1931, as compared with 50 cents when it was established.

House Committee Asks 435 Million For War Department

IS $442,000 ABOVE THIS FISCAL YEAR

But Bill Provides for Economies if Hoover Cur-tails Program

Washington—(AP)—Lacking definite conclusions from President Hoover's economic survey of the war department, the house appropriations committee today reported the supply bill for the fiscal year 1931 for the executive branch, calling for an expenditure of $435,331,000, an increase of $442,000 over the current fiscal year.

With the idea that economies may be effected through the survey, however, the committee wrote into the bill a provision that would prevent the use of any of the money appropriated for any other purpose in the event that President Hoover decides upon curtailment of the activities provided for in the measure.

Although carrying an increased appropriation, the supply bill is $2,767,000 less than the budget estimates. It sets aside $337,053,000 for military purposes, an increase of $6,019,000 over the current year, and $117,278,000 for non-military activities, including the Panama Canal, a decrease of $5,577,000 as compared with 1930.

The permanent appropriations amount to $9,627,000, of which $1,375,000 is for military purposes and $8,252,000 is for non-military activities, with this, the total outlay for the next fiscal year is brought to $442,533,000.

CUT ARMY HOUSING FUND
The reduction in the budget estimates partially was effected by curtailment of the appropriation for the army housing program to the extent of $2,000,000.

The decrease in the non-military activity outlay largely resulted from the lack of an appropriation for the Inland Waterways corporation and for return contributions on flood control work. The increase for military purposes was due to greater outlays for the quartermaster corps amounting to $2,021,000 for improved uniforms, acquisition of and improvement of equipment, and for regular pay increases. An increase from $34,910,000 to $36,057,000 for the Army Air corps was proposed and an increase of $1,396,000 for the ordnance department for purchase of tanks and development of equipment for mechanized forces.

For the pay of the army $133,000 was added, but the entire outlay for the financial department was cut to $135,868,000. This will provide for a regular army personnel of 12,000 commissioned officers, 1,028 warrant officers, 118,750 enlisted men and 6,500 Philippine scouts. It also provides for 190,000 national guardsmen, 75,000 trainees at Citizens Military Training camps, and for 127,500 students in the Reserve Officers Training corps.

FOR ARMY ENGINEERS
The engineer corps was given a total of $92,480,000 for non-military activities. Included in this appropriation was $85,000,000 to be made available immediately for existing river and harbor works, an increase of $5,000,000 over the current year; $35,000,000 for flood control on the Mississippi river, an increase of $5,000,000; $1,000,000 for flood control on the Sacramento river, $800,000 for roads and bridges in Alaska; $400,000 for emergency flood control fund; $250,000 for the California Flood Fund; $18,000 for the California Flood commission, and $2,500 for maintenance of the birthplace of Washington. The war department previously announced all the projects to come under these appropriations.

The other major items in the non-military activities included $11,235,000 for the National Home for Disabled Volunteer soldiers, an increase of $1,168,000 over the current year; $129,200 for national cemeteries; $302,000 for national military parks; $300,000 for Washington-Alaska cable maintenance, and $11,655,000 for the Panama canal, an increase of $1,612,000.

OTHER APPROPRIATIONS
The measure also set aside $2,118,400 for the Signal Corps; $1,642,000 for the Medical department; $83,000 for the bureau of Insular Affairs; $653,000 for the Insular Affairs; $11,602,000 for the Ordnance department; $1,347,000 for the Chemical Warfare service; $2,470,000 for West Point Military Academy; $23,058,000 for the Military Bureau; including $2,014,000 for the National Guard; $8,542,000 for Ordnance; $6,822,000 for the National Citizens Military Training Camps; and $710,000 for the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice. The committee's report said that more than 20 per cent of the items in the bill for military activities were chargeable to the air corps. Under other heads in the measure, the report said, referring to pay, housing, food supply, equipment, and other items, in addition to the $35,000,000, the total for that service was $72,833,000.

Pending the result of the economic survey of the department's activities, the committee recommended that the housing program be slackened as a result of the curtailed appropriation for this purpose by $2,000,000.

We kids were proud to wear out first copper toed boots. One of the boys who couldn't get his idioms straight was good naturally "razed" by some of us somewhat as fellows—Drink de hoses some wasser—Lock de door open, etc.

There was always a jar of goose grease handy to anoint us kids with when we got a cold.

We thought that Bologna sausage was made by the butchers, not to sell, but to cut a chunk off and give to us kids when we went with our parents to the meat market.

CONTINUE EFFORTS TO RECOVER BODIES

Storm Delays Salvaging of Two Planes Which Carried Ten to Death

Santa Monica, Calif.—(AP)—Searchers hoped today to be able to resume their efforts to bring to the surface of the wreckage of two motion picture camera planes believed to contain the bodies of seven of the ten men who died in a mid-air collision over the ocean off Point Vincent last Thursday. The bodies of three of the dead were recovered immediately after the crash.

Fear that some of the bodies may have been washed out of the wrecked cabins was expressed after Charles E. Smale, a diver went to the bottom in 60 feet of water, where the plane had been dragged by a trawler, and reported that he could find no bodies. He said the cabin was so badly entangled, however, that several bodies might still be found in the area directly astern of the engine.

Plans to send Smale to the bottom again yesterday were balked by stormy seas, but another examination will be made of the wrecked plane as quickly as the sea calms.

The second plane was located Saturday and dragged to within 100 feet of the surface, but was lost when a line broke. Robert S. Gardner, head of a salvage concern conducting the search said he was confident the plane will again be located when the weather clears.

UNDERTAKER KEEPS BODY BECAUSE NO ONE CAN PAY BILL

Kenosha—In Laurinburg, N. C., lies the body of Franklin Corbie, who died nineteen years ago.

He embalmed and mummified it and for nineteen years it has lain in a glass casket as an object of curiosity in McDougall's undertaking establishment.

Now the Kenosha Italian-American society has interested itself in the case. It has asked District Attorney Morris Barnett to ascertain how much the bill is and is offering to pay the bill and all expenses for the removal of the body to Kenosha for burial.

SENATE RESUMES TARIFF DEBATE

ed on this committee and the effort of his son to gain membership in this group has been frowned upon by a number of the regular Republicans because of the association of the Young LaFollette to the western independent group once headed by his father.

The London naval conference, for which members of the American delegation will leave in a few days, aroused interest at both sides of the capital. Whatever agreement may be reached at the parley ultimately must come before the senate for approval and, is appropriations for the curtailment of funds already authorized should become involved, the house will be called upon for action.

PROHIBITION ISSUE
While the prohibition question is expected to arouse much discussion at both ends of the capital, the question of house approval of the administration's request for a joint commission to consider reorganization of the dry law enforcement machinery is looked upon as the first prospect of action. Approval of the creation of this commission, already sanctioned by the senate, is regarded as a foregone conclusion.

Leaders in both houses today were dubious as to when the session would be resumed. In recent years, regular sessions such as the present, seldom have terminated before mid-June and frequently have extended into July. None of those in control in either house would hazard anything definite concerning the possibility of adjournment but all indicated that the new refrigerated ventilation system would see much use before the legislators cease work and go home to plunge wholeheartedly into the campaign.

Dan Cupid's Record For 1929 Below That Of 1928

Dan Cupid ran a poor race during 1929. When the final tabulations were made by John E. Hantschel, county clerk, who acted as Dan's agent in the issuance of marriage licenses, it was found that he had issued 37 licenses less last year than in 1928.

The total for 1929 was 434 while the total for 1928 was 471.

In only three months during 1929 did Cupid succeed in bettering the records he made in the same month in 1928. This was in May, June and August. In May, 1929 there were 47 licenses issued as compared with 54 in the same month of 1928. In June there were 86 licenses issued compared with 77 in June, 1928, while in August of this year there were 56 licenses issued as compared with 51 in August, 1928.

In two months, April and November there were exactly the same number of licenses issued each year. In April 26 couples received licenses to wed while in November 44 couples secured permits.

In the other seven months the records made in 1928 bettered the records for this year, as follows: January, 1929, 17, 1928, 20; February, 1929, 15, 1928, 25; March, 1929, 11, 1928, 15; July, 1929, 26, 1928, 42; September, 1929, 37, 1928, 46; October, 1929, 40, 1928, 52; December 1929, 22, 1928, 16.

At only one time during the year was the total number of licenses issued at that time ahead of the number issued in the same period in 1928. This was at the end of June, when for 1929, there were 215 as against 214 for the same period in 1928.

In both years of June again proved the most popular month for marriages. In 1929, however, August was the next most popular month with 56 licenses while in 1928 October proved the second most popular month. The third largest month in 1929 was May while the third largest in 1928 was August.

Talks To Parents

A 24-HOUR DUTY By Alice Judson Peale

Modern women are fond of considering how much freer they are than their own mothers were. Have they not household appliances which turn to child's play the erstwhile heavy drudgery of the housekeeping?

And yet, probably in any home which does not support a full time servant the woman of today has less respite from home duties than the mother of a generation ago.

The modern mother often finds herself on a job that entails 24 hour duty for every day in the year. Before people learned to live as they do today in small apartments or in homes much shrunken as to numbers of bedrooms and living space, the family group was almost always augmented by the presence of some relative, a grandmother or an unmarried aunt, who could be depended upon to "mind the children" while mother spent an afternoon visiting, attending an evening church social or even taking an occasional weekend vacation with father.

Today millions of mothers are literally tied to their homes every moment of the day and night—for there is no one with whom to leave the baby even for a half hour. The situation is not wholesome. No one can be thus bound to routine responsibility day in and day out, without suffering from frayed nerves, irritability or an aggravated case of martyrdom.

Arranging for a little healthy release from home cares is not an easy matter, but those who have a margin of spending money may well use it in hiring competent part-time help, while nursery schools and kindergartens also offer a solution.

Herr Fritz von Opel has arrived in New York and says he will develop an airplane that will fly 2000 miles an hour. Even then the fellow who takes his family out for a Sunday drive won't be satisfied.

Para-(49)—Rubber exporters here are worried over the low price and dwindling trade in what was formerly Brazil's chief export. Suggestions for holding most of the rubber on hand until better prices have been veyed by the fact that the Amazon country produces less than three per cent of the world supply.

RAILROAD PROSPERITY
The railroads report the greatest year in history for volume of freight traffic and "the highest operating efficiency and economy ever attained." Their gross operating revenues are estimated, for the full year, at $6,357,000,000, an increase of 2.9 per cent over 1928, while operating expenses rose only 1.4 per cent. There was a new return of 4.99 per cent, the highest in 10 years. Call it five per cent. This is the average for good lines and bad, profitable and unprofitable. It means a pretty satisfactory income for the rich, well-managed systems. The roads are evidently not afraid of doing any worse than they have been doing, for they plan to spend more than $1,000,000,000 in 1930 for new construction and equipment.

All of which is for the good of the people and the prosperity of the country at large. Unless the railroads make money they cannot satisfactorily function as mediums of transportation and distribution. A profitable railway is an assurance of better and more reliable service and that is what commerce and business demand. Furthermore, profitable railway operation is the only possible road to lower freight rates. It is service and volume which produce profits and if these grow, just as in any other field of public service, the possibilities for reducing rates and cheaper transportation are enlarged. The country, therefore, should rejoice in the growing prosperity of the railway systems. It should also encourage the proposals for consolidation in the certain knowledge that it will greatly improve service and facilities and yield economies in which shippers as well as the railroads themselves will share.

WASTING OUR FORESTS
The United States Forest service office in Portland, Ore., reports that timber waste in logging and forest fires of the past few years have completely denuded 2,500,000 acres of land. Most of this area will have to be artificially seeded before new crops of trees will be obtainable. At the present rate of planting, the report indicates, it will require at least 100 years before the total number of national tracts will be completely recovered with seedlings.
Some optimistic observer has said that people today are more concerned about the future than the people of preceding generations. It would be a good thing if this concern were more apparent in the matter of forests. If we were more thoughtful about retaining lovely wooded areas for coming generations we would have more of them for our own present use and enjoyment. There is a vague, not very widespread forestry movement, but it is not yet large enough or powerful enough to do much good. Year after year, we read about fine forests that are wiped out through human carelessness or indifference, where the timber is removed without regard to new or continuous growth, and where large tracts are ruined by fire. The conservation movement needs more energetic friends.

A NEW ONE EVERY MINUTE
The fools are not all dead yet, though some of them are near enough to make it no joke. In a marathon dance held just outside of Detroit, to get around a city ordinance against such insanities, one entry collapsed the other day after 860 hours of dancing and remained in a stupor for a long time, while his girl partner "suffered a nervous breakdown." Eight couples kept on dancing, if you could call it that, and as this comment was written, were around 900 hours.

Anyone who had suggested, before the war, that a human being could dance 900 hours, or half that long, would have been considered crazy. But not so crazy as those who undertook to do it. That old Greek fellow who trotted from Marathon to Athens with the news of a famous victory meant well; but if he had known what he was letting future generations in for, he would not have done it. The greatest merit of the Greeks was common sense.

NEW KIND OF BOSTON PARTY
The demonstration staged in protest of the killing of three run-runners in Rhode Island waters by coast guards might have been expected in Chicago, Milwaukee or St. Paul, but never in Boston. Apparently the New England bean-eaters have become as attached to their prohibition liquor as their ancestors were to their tea. Chicago has outdone all other American cities in the tribute and honors paid to its slaughtered gangsters and other arch criminals. Their funerals are more gorgeous affairs than those of governors and United States senators. If Chicago were on the seaboard it would do the same for run-runners and desperadoes killed in the line of bootleg duty.

Despite our respect for these twentieth century traditions and the general exaltation of crime, the demonstration on the Boston common seems a bit clownish. It is hard to understand a city which confiscates and burns literature with a kick in it and at the same time advertises itself as the defender of the rum runner and the mourner of his corpse. Perhaps Boston will erect a monument to these deceased benefactors. Since we must have our liquor and will not permit ourselves to have it legally, we ought to honor those who provide us with it illicitly and rever their memory when they have sacrificed their lives in this noble pursuit. In fact, we know of no greater social problem today than how to safeguard the lives of rum-runners. Unless something is done about it soon we must count our government and our civilization a failure. Not only will we forfeit our self-respect and the respect of the world, but we will undermine our most sacred institutions.

INDIAN FREEDOM
The president of the Indian National congress at Lahore tells his followers, amid wild applause, that they are "in open conspiracy to free India from British rule," and if they cannot withdraw from the empire peaceably, they will do so violently. Those natives may applaud and resolve, but will they really do anything more? British statesmen would like to know.

India, with its teeming millions, is highly intelligent on the upper levels, but the Indian character is usually regarded by occidentals as rather futile. Yet the movement for home rule has been gathering strength until it may mean something more than oratory and printed proclamations. If the time comes when the natives, in their various states, can work together regardless of religion, caste, race, politics and hereditary enmities, it will soon be all over with British rule.
If that happens, or if Britain gives India a free choice, what will the natives do with their self-determination? If they are wise, they will probably do just about what our Filipinos ought to do if a similar contingency ever arises there. That is, remain bound to the big Western power of their own free will, in some such light and easy bondage as that of Canada and Australia to the British empire. Self-determination is right. But sometimes, in determining things, it is the part of wisdom to hang onto a big brother's hand.

OUR CANDY TOOTH
When representatives of the candy industry say that "business is sound" they are speaking nothing but the truth. Neither the stock market crash nor any other event or trend has had an adverse effect on the consumption of candy in this country. According to Chicago manufacturers, Americans spent more than a billion dollars for sweets in 1929 and consumed more than 1,600,000,000 pounds of candy. That was the biggest volume for any year in candy history.
"Confectionary," says this authority, "ranks 35th among 5,000 important industries in the United States. More than 1,200,000 Americans are dependent to a larger or smaller degree on candy for their livelihood. Two hundred and fifty thousand persons are employed directly to manufacture, distribute and sell candy."
Those figures, probably, do not include the dentists, doctors, jewelers and others who profit indirectly from the great candy consumption. Now let's hear from the tobacco people.

Colorado was admitted to the Union in 1876 and since then has been called the Centennial State, that year marking the one-hundredth anniversary of the American independence.

The Post-Mortem
The Democrats still owe nearly a half million, mostly, we'd guess, as a result of the last election. Reminds us of the overcoat which was stolen twenty six hours after we bought it—no, it wasn't paid for.

Health Department
The distinction between a jersey sweater and a Jersey cow obviously has something to do with the butter supply.

Speaking of fires, which we did a while back, calls to mind what Sarto Balliet had to say at the toy company fire last Thursday night. Sarto watched with interest the quenching of the flames, then grumbled something about blunting the aldermanic form of government for putting them out.
"Why," Sarto is reported to have said, "if we had a city manager there'd have been a nice fire—lots of entertainment for the crowd."

Grasp new tube of favorite toothpaste in left hand. Take old razor blade in right. Proceed to make half-inch slit in mid-quarters of tube. Re- place tube on shelf. Ponder over disposition of razor blade. After next brushing of teeth you will discover quantities of paste on hands and bathrobe. Discouraging, no doubt. Advantage lies in fact that you may brush teeth as much as six times per diem (Rolls Royce for "a day") and months will elapse before you can successfully roll tube up past the slit.

Today's Anniversary
NEW MEXICO ADMITTED
On Jan. 6, 1912, New Mexico was admitted to the Union.
Although the state legislature was strongly Republican, the first governor to be elected was a Democrat, William C. McDonald. He was elected by a coalition of Democratic and progressive Republican voters.
The legislature, on March 12, 1912, elected Albert B. Fall and Thomas B. Catron United States senators. Senator Fall drew the short term (one year), but at the end of that time he was elected to succeed himself.
Two years later, three constitutional amendments were carried—two reducing the terms of county and state officials from four to two years, another permitting such officials to succeed themselves, and the third eliminating the state board of equalization and repealing the clause on taxation.

OH, IT'S FINE TO HAVE A WHOLE SKIN
Of course I mean a nice young skin, but even an oldish one is not at all bad if it is not trayed or cracked too much. And a nice young skin must be full of something, too. A skunkful of yourself.
According to a newspaper item sent in by a reader, a Professor Walker Hall, nominated in the item "the distinguished English toxicologist," recently faced death in a little experiment. It seems that Professor Hall contends that arsenic cannot be absorbed through the skin. Now I have it on the word of F. G. G., an analytical chemist of a southern city, that Page 554 of the 5th Edition of Blythe's "Poisons, Their Effects and Detection," appears an authoritative assertion to the contrary, and Blythe, F. G. G., assures me, as considered by chemists the most authoritative work on the subject of toxicology (toxicology is the study of poisons and their effects.) Here is the assertion quoted from Blythe:
"Metallic arsenic, according to the experiments of Paschikis and Obermaier, is capable of being absorbed by the skin, and then undergoes oxidation, and produces poisonous effects."
Now if any of you good readers are thinking of getting rid of a rich relation by massaging him with a little arsenic, I earnestly advise you not to waste valuable time that way. That is not unless your uncle's skin is all cracked or raw or scratched, and even then, it would be a very tedious process indeed, and you'd probably have uncle grunting around for a year or two before it was all over.
This man Blythe may be as high an authority on toxicology as F. G. G., says he is, but if that's the best evidence of it, I should say Blythe must be an awful old woman. As for the two Laplanders he mentions, and their experiments, perhaps the less said the better—a fancy Blythe said as little as possible in his book.
I do like the way this English toxicologist goes about his work. First he contends that it is all stuff and nonsense about the unbroken skin absorbing mercury, arsenic and other things. Maybe he even makes a few bold or provoking assertions about it, and along comes a strange bird (there are a lot of these strange birds in the world) who hides behind a hedge and tosses over a kind of challenge to the Professor. I can tell you just how the challenge is worded: "If the skin won't absorb arsenic, try rubbing about half an ounce of it on your forearm, and see how stiff and white you'll be next day!" And I can imagine the Professor, tiring at last of this sniping from cover, gnashing his teeth, rolling up his sleeves, and rubbing in the arsenic. Then I can imagine the "scientific" people who tossed the challenge at the Professor slithering off through the grass and underbrush, so that no one would know they had been in the vicinity.
Anyway, Professor Walker Hall, who I hope is not a mere figure of some kindly newspaper reporter's imagination, subjected his skin to the test and failed to turn up next day in the morgue. But even so, I wonder if the Professor found any satisfaction in it? Unless the "scientific" gentlemen who insist things can be absorbed through the skin are willing to be seen among those present a fellow must feel foolish doing these silly experiments on himself.

FLASHES FROM HOLLYWOOD
BY ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood—Eddie Dowling, musical comedy star, has honestly admitted ever since entering talkies that his efforts here would be directed at the box-office only. He demonstrated that in "Rainbow Man," and now in "Blaze of Glory" has exemplified it further.
"Blaze of Glory" is lachrymose melo-drama, full of sentimental songs and allusions to pals and buddies, and distinguished by the presence of Betty Compton and Henry B. Walthall, whose microphoned voice is a treat.
It is novel, however, in combining three popular types of talkie fare in one picture, flashing back from a murder trial to a Broadway revue to French battlefields with sometimes confusing effect.
Movie folk, their Christmas trees striped of tinsel and spangles and gone to the ash heap, still are chuckling over some of the "gag" greetings they received from the more clever or facetious among their Hollywood friends.
In Hollywood, probably more than in any city in the world, the capacity for witicism and wisecracking is exalted and revered, and in consequence there are many who strive to extend the old wishes in lighter vein.
Last season the talk of the col-ony was the large humorous greeting sent by James Cruze and Betty Compton—a cartoon depicting an "at home" in the Cruze household, in which a bewildered hostess hosted did their best to be hospitable to "guests" they had never seen before.

THE BEAR'S ROAR ECHOES
This past Christmas the recent stock market collapse and consequent financial troubles inspired numerous gag artists—notably one who "going to recent developments in the stock market was forced to send greetings this year on margin," which he did around the edges of his card.
Then there was the newspaper man who "still wished you a Merry Christmas" despite the array of past-due bills, traffic violation tickets, pawnshop receipts, duns from creditors, florists, et cetera, his card pictures in detail.
The gagging, however, seems continued to writers and others outside the ranks of the stars, the majority of whom preferred conventional cards embellished by wood-cuts, etchings, or other art.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington—Senator Carl Hayden was born and reared in Arizona— even served four years as a sheriff in the one-time "wild and woolly" county of Maricopa—but he frankly admits those who try to make of him a romantic soul are off the track. So he got a big kick out of Rep. Louis Crampton's efforts along this line the other day on "the floor of the house."
Crampton's story about the senator from Arizona was told during the course of debate on Indians and how they respond to education. He had just described the plight of the Carlisle Indian graduate who, upon returning home, was forced to put on his blanket again because his mother had burned his "paleface" clothes.
AS THE ROMANS DO
"A distinguished former member shshrdcmfw72347890$ ETAC- ETAA of this house now in the senate, and who was brought up in Arizona, told me once about his experience with the blanket, so to speak," said Crampton.
Then he proceeded to talk without mentioning his name, of how Hayden went to Stanford university wearing his sombrero and chaps as he had always done in Arizona. He had not been there long before he realized his clothing was creating a sensation on the campus. So he shed his "reservation blanket" and put on college clothes.
Upon graduation he returned to Arizona. Again came the consciousness that he was not dressed as others in the community. Soon he left off the stiff collar and other things to match and went back to his blanket." He put on the sombrero and chaps and dressed as the community did.

BUT NOT A BLANKET
The senator's version is a bit different. This, he says, is what really happened:
"I went out to Stanford not wearing my sombrero and chaps as Louis says, but a suit of homespun and hat that had long since been out of fashion.
"I had not been at the university long before I realized that in order to be collegiate I would have to get some clothes of a later cut. I imagine I acted pretty much as any boy going off to school these days would act.
"I wrote my mother that I had to have some new clothes. When she sent me the money I went down and bought what fashion decreed that the well-dressed college man of that day should wear.
"When I went back to the home town, I realized my clothes were not the kind that were being worn there. The only sensible thing to do was to discard them for more conventional dress.

"And I follow."

Since 1914 a dash of realism has entered American public life as it has American literature. Our novelists and poets, a few of them, have been looking at the real world during the past decade and a half; our public men, a few of them, have also been saying by their attitude that there are hard, harsh facts in economics, in government, that cannot be met with phrases. Roughly speaking the opening of the World War marks the dividing line between the generation of realism and the generation of idealism. There was of course realism in the age of sentimentalism and also plenty of sentimentalism in the age of realism, but there has been a gradual change.
William Jennings Bryan was one of the main apostles of the age of sentimentalism. He was still going full tilt when the age of realism opened but he never understood the new forces in American life and he had become too old and set in his ways to adjust himself to them. He despised them as evil, they way the old always dismiss the forces of youth they do not understand. But for a generation, from 1896 on, Bryan was one of the main voices of his generation. His power came largely from the fact that he spoke the language of a sentimental generation.
Paxton Hibben's biography of Bryan, "The Peerless Leader," recently published, is not merely the biography of a man but of a generation. That has been the contribution of Paxton Hibben to the art of biography—he has given meaning to the fact that a man is not an isolated phenomenon to be treated purely as an individual. A man, no matter how great or how famous, is a member of his generation, sometimes its spokesman, sometimes its dupe. He can be adequately interpreted only in terms of his background and a biographer cannot write the life of a man without writing the history of his generation. Hibben did this in the case of Henry Ward Beecher, he did it again in the case of William Jennings Bryan. He would probably have done in for other noted Americans had not death cut short his fruitful career a few months ago when he was about three fourths through with the Bryan book. The story was finished from Hibben's notes by another hand.

In his indictment of the generation during which Bryan lived and attained power, Hibben does not say that he is not impartial. He is quite impartial in the distribution of bricks and bouquets. He often expresses admiration for Bryan and he certainly is not complimentary to Bryan's opponents. McKinley is a sorry figure in Hibben's pages and it would have been delightful if the Bryan book could have been followed by a life of McKinley. What a gallery of puppets a writer like Hibben could have presented in such a study of Roosevelt, the strenuous one, also one of the voices of the sentimental generation. His sentimentalism was martial where Bryan's was the sentimentalism of peace. Like that of other strenuous ones, Mussolini, Roosevelt became the apostle of large families because "more babies" had a lovely and noble sound, not because it had sound sociology to recommend it.
Had Bryan arrived at manhood after the middle of the second decade of the twentieth century, the chances are less that he would have risen to power. It is not an accident that such a man became a powerful political figure at the time he did. The times were ripe for him. Moreover, he was lucky that he never gained high public office. Had Bryan been elected to the presidency in 1896 he would have had less chance to keep his hold on his generation. He could not have continued to sentimentalize about them.

Like his generation, Bryan was a provincial. In making his tour around the world he never really got out of Nebraska. Bryan was never a citizen of the world, always a citizen of Nebraska. His generation was not made up of citizens of the world. That was one of the reasons why Bryan was as powerful as he was. He fitted well into his background.

There is a sense in which the only sensible thing to do was to discard them for more conventional dress.

Adventures In The Library

THE SENTIMENTAL GENERATION
Since 1914 a dash of realism has entered American public life as it has American literature. New Beauty

FOR THE NEW FORD

THE NEW FORD COUPE

Flowing grace of line gives style and distinction to new, roomy Ford bodies. Now on display at dealers' showrooms

THE NEW FORD CARS, shown last Tuesday for the first time, have been enthusiastically received throughout the country. Everywhere it is realized that now, more than ever, the new Ford is a "value far above the price."

One of the distinguishing features of the new Ford bodies is the carefully planned harmony of every detail of design. From the new deep radiator to the tip of the curving rear fender there is an unbroken sweep of line—a flowing grace of contour heretofore thought possible only in an expensive automobile.

LOOKING at the new Ford you are impressed instantly by its smart style and compact, substantial sturdiness. For there is about it a certain character or personality which sets it apart and gives it a fresh and lasting beauty. You will take a real pride in this beauty just as you find a real thrill in the alert, capable performance of the car.

All of the new Ford bodies are finished in a variety of colors, with new striping and new streamline moulding. Interiors have more leg room. Closed cars have adjustable front seats. The smaller wheels, with larger tires, bring the car closer to the road, with a consequent gain in riding comfort and safety.

An additional feature of importance is the Rustless Steel used for the radiator shell, head lamps, hub caps, cowl finish strip and tail lamp.

This Rustless Steel will retain its bright, gleaming luster throughout the life of the car. It will not corrode, rust or tarnish in any kind of weather. Its brilliance is permanent. There is no plate to wear off, crack or scale, for it is the same bright metal all the way through.

The use of this Rustless Steel on the new Ford is a reflection of the enduring quality that has been built into every part of the car.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

THE bear sure had a heap of fun. He sat and made the long bike run around in funny circles. Then he'd bounce upon the seat. He waved his front paws in the air and looked as if he didn't care what happened to the bicycle. The whole sight was a treat.

The Tynmites still hid from sight. It seemed the bear was tame all right, but they all seemed afraid to stand out where they could be seen. "Oh, my," said one. "What can we do? We face a problem that is new. The bear should get a spanking. He's acting very mean."

"The bike is ours. He has no right to use it. Let's make a light. What say we make some snowballs and then chase him out of here? We can pull one of our good stunts and start in throwing all at once. Perhaps, with such excitement, it will fill him full of fear."

"Well, I don't know," another sighed. "That is a plan that might be tried, but just suppose. After Bear decides to stay and fight, it's his, and tall and very fat and with his paws, could crush us flat. I s'ly fear the snowball plan would turn out far from right."

Just then a voice came from afar. "Hey, Buster, tell me where you are. You ran away from me and now I'll punish you right quick. You can't stay away for long. You only get yourself in wrong. You sneaking out of sight was just another funny trick."

"Oh, look! A man is bound this way," cried Scouty. "I just hope he'll stay until he catches Mister Bear. Then we can get our bike. The man ran out and chased the bear. The race was something really rare. 'Ha, ha,' cried Clowdy. 'This is just the sort of scene I like.' (The bear does some tricks in the next story.)

Second Week Of Holiday Season Gayer Than First

BY DOROTHY J. LEWIS (Post-Crescent's Washington Society Editor)

Washington—The second week of the holiday season in Washington seemed even gayer and busier than the first. New Year's Eve was as ever crowded with noisy and late merriment, while New Year's play boasted two distinguished and colorful events, the White House reception and the diplomatic breakfast given by the Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson.

These two traditional affairs, however, did not provoke nearly the excitement and interest, at least among the younger Washington social set, as did the dance given at the White House by young Alan Hoover. It was the first evening dance in the White House since the Roosevelt administration, and the young people lucky enough to be invited will be talking about it for a long time yet. Mrs. Hoover ignored a cold to receive with her son. The uniforms of the President's young military and naval aides were very gay in the flower-decked rooms.

With but a few breaks in its tradition, the White House reception on New Year's day has been held since the building of the White House when President John Adams came to live in it. It has lost some of its picturesque quality because many of the foreign diplomats have substituted conventional morning clothes for their uniforms and in the case of the Oriental nations, their colorful embroidered robes. The Army and Navy uniforms, however, are still much in evidence to brighten the scene.

From 11 until 12:30 the President and Mrs. Hoover received members of the diplomatic corps, members of the cabinet, the judiciary, members of congress and other officials of the government, and of the Army, Navy, and Marine corps. Then at 1 o'clock, the long line of citizens began to wind its slow way from the north entrance of the White House inside the grounds and to the President. At 3:30 President Hoover had shaken hands with 6,348 men, women and children.

Representative and Mrs. Henry Allen Cooper of Racine were numbered among the many members of congress attending the reception. They went straight from the White House to the Pan-American union to attend the diplomatic breakfast at noon. This is one of the most beautiful buildings in the National Capital with its Latin-American architecture and lovely patio with a fountain and great masses of growing green plants. It was gayly decorated for the breakfast with vivid scarlet poinsettias outdoing in brilliance even the parrots in the patio. The Marine Band orchestra played during the breakfast for this very distinguished company.

Dr. Glenn Frank, President of the University of Wisconsin, and Mrs. Frank arrived in Washington Saturday for a visit of a few days. They were the honor guests at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davies Saturday night. Senator and Mrs. John J. Blaine of Boston and Representative and Mrs. Henry Allen Cooper were among the guests.

Representative and Mrs. John C. Schafer were very busy with last-minute entertaining for their three mischievous guests who had to return to Annapolis in the evening of New Year's day.

December 25, they attended the supper dance at Wardman Park hotel and on Monday they were present at the sub-deb ball at the Congressional club. Representative Schafer gave a birthday party for Mrs. Schafer on New Year's Eve at the Madison. Mrs. Schafer's birthday really falls on January 3, but the mischikemen were anxious to help in the celebration. The party numbered 10 in all.

Thursday Representative and Mrs. Schafer took Dr. and Mrs. Barnes and Miss Helen Schafer, Representative Schafer's two sisters and brother-in-law, to the dance at the Congressional club, and Friday Mrs. Schafer, Mrs. Barnes, and Miss Schafer attended the Congressional club tea. Mrs. Minnigrove Andrews of Washington, D. C., was the speaker, discussing her impressions of the 10 administrations during which she has lived in Washington.

Mrs. Henry Allen Cooper was a guest Saturday at a luncheon given by Mrs. Albert Johnson, wife of Representative Johnson of Washington.

The movement of Washington back to Georgetown, the section which was a thriving American port before Washington was founded, has been joined by more Wisconsin people. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Harry Lapish have bought one of the old houses of the revolutionary period and will restore it as their home.

Mrs. Lapish was Miss Edith Porter, who is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin where she was a member of Sigma Kappa sorority and was prominent in student activities. She also lived in Burlington, where she did newspaper work after her graduation. Her husband is one of the National Capital's rising young architects.

Mr. Lapish has already directed the restoration of several Georgetown homes for Washington social leaders, and both the young couple are eagerly planning their home which they hope to be able to occupy in the spring.

In addition to the "cave dwellers"—the "old" families of the Capital who have maintained their Georgetown homes throughout the years, a new colony of people prominent in social and official life in Washington is growing up in Georgetown, fortunately restoring the beautiful old homes rather than destroying them for less distinctive architecture.

Among comparatively recent additions to the Georgetown colony are Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick of Illinois, Representative Ruth Baker Pratt of New York, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former assistant attorney general, and a veritable army of writers, officials and Army Navy officers.

Andersons at Party

Mrs. P. M. Anderson, who before her marriage to Colonel P. M. Anderson formerly of Madison, was Miss Grace Harden of Augusta, Wis., attended the debut party given by Mr. and Mrs. William S. Corby for their debutante daughter on Monday. Their very lovely home was even more attractive in its holiday dress.

Colonel and Mrs. Anderson were guests at a party given by Dr. and Mrs. Leonard Steingard on New Year's Eve. Dr. Steingard is head curator of the National Museum in Washington.

Miss Grace Nelson, daughter of Representative John M. Nelson of Madison, and her sister, Mrs. George N. Lamb of Wilmette, Ill., who has been visiting in Washington during the holidays, left the city Thursday for a visit to their brother, Reverend Byron M. Nelson in Perth Amboy, N. J. After a few days with him, they are planning to go on to New York where they will visit Miss Anita Pluess. Miss Pluess was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority at the University of Wisconsin. They expected to be back in Washington.

The Story of Sue

MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

"JACK doesn't know about it. I haven't told him," Sue replied to Harry Becker's question, concerning the young attorney's opinion of Geraldine Parker's actions.

For just a second Harry eyed her quizzically, and then a feeling of relief settled on his face.

"Well finish the matter up in a few minutes," Harry explained cheerfully. "You say you know where Miss Parker is? Good! We'll get a policeman. Sometimes brass buttons put the fear of the law into scheming hearts. And then we'll pick up the lady. I'll call the jewelry store to send a man over there."

The pawn merchant came forward, surprised at the size of the delegation which had come to call on him. "Been a little mistake made," Harry started in. "It seems Miss Parker wasn't given her own ring yesterday. This gentleman," indicating the jewel expert, "can identify it."

The man, plainly cowed by the member of the police squad, hesitated. Then he refused to admit knowledge of the rings.

"Better come across," Harry talked on in an easy, natural voice. "This man isn't going to lock you up. All we want is the ring."

Harry tossed his card across the counter and the heady little eyes of the merchant opened wider.

"Oh! Why didn't you tell me? Now that ring may be around somewhere. But if it is we didn't know it." Profuse apologies followed as he ordered his assistant to search and in a few seconds the missing solitaire was in the pocket of the jewelry company's expert.

"Thank you, Harry," Sue said when they were alone. "It was wonderful of you to take time for us. I appreciate it ever so much. Sometime, if you need a literary masterpiece typed, call on me."

Harry had promised he would, and talked of inconsequential things all the way back to the office, but Sue felt his eyes penetrating her mind whenever he glanced at her, and she grew restless.

After she had got out of the shining roadster in front of the office building and Harry had driven on, she watched the car threading its way through the congested traffic.

"Harry is too nice to be hurt. I don't want to make him suffer," she mediated. "But he's nice—awfully nice—and most men grow fleshly when they get older, anyway."

Sybil Lester came along, slim and lithe and lovely in a copper-colored ensemble in the new mode, plainly designed for fall.

Sue was suddenly conscious that her own dress, becoming though it was, had been made from a bargain remnant of washable tan crepe.

The wealthy girl was Sue and her cool brown eyes glanced over her dress and slippers before she looked away. She did not speak.

"Harry Becker's wife could dress even better than that. Think about it, Sue," a taunting voice said in her ear, and Martin Clinger passed her, on his way upstairs to his own office.

NEXT: Martin Clinger moves.

Adults, Too, Prefer "No Dosing" For Colds

Millions Adopt External Remedy Made Famous as Treatment for Children's Colds

Acts 2 Ways at Once

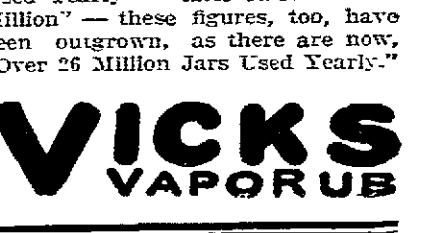

Just rubbed on, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster, "drawing out" tightness and soreness. At the same time, the heat of the body releases medicated vapors which are breathed in direct to the inflamed air-passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing.

Now "26" Million!

The ever-increasing demand for this better method of treating colds is shown in the figures of the familiar Vicks slogan. First announced when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly"—later raised to "21 Million"—these figures, too, have been outgrown. As there are now, "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly."

Equally Good for Adults

Mothers of young children especially have been quick to appreciate the modern external way of treating colds, because there's nothing to swallow and, of course, nothing to upset the little ones' stomachs. Year after year more and more adults, too, have found Vicks equally good for their own colds.

MOTOR CARS SHOW MORE SPLENDOR AT EXHIBIT THAN EVER

If Industry Is Retrenching, Automobile Show Doesn't Indicate It

By LEMUEL F. PARTON Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press

New York—(CPA)—The automobile industry advances into 1930 like an army with banners. If recent retrenching events have led to hints of retrenchment, there is no such suggestion in the largest, most varied, elaborate and beautiful display of automobiles ever assembled in the New York automobile show, which opened Saturday.

Forty-six manufacturers display 325 models—more than sixteen cylinder cars than ever before—and, instead of back to utility, the drive is toward style, luxury, distinction and novelty.

While many of these designs were projected before the stock slump of last fall and subsequent slump of depression, there is, instead of recession and aggressive out-reach into new technique, decoration and body design which makes not only a spectacular exhibit but a convincing answer to the whippers about a big let-down in the industry.

One could assemble an all-American car from the various new developments in the show. It would be sound-proof, as new methods of insulation have reduced noises to something like the whirr of a wrist watch; it would have new pillow-top upholstery, so placed that one may lie back luxuriously.

It would have adjustable seats and would be fitted to a long-legged or short-legged driver, with foot wells if necessary; it would have more of the streamline effect, something like the new skirts, than any previous model, and the body would be wider and roomier; with sixteen cylinders, it would have the power and flexibility of a speeding arrow; it would have four cigar lighters and a built-in locker, a hot water supply of imported or pre-war anti-freeze mixture.

HIDDEN WATER INTAKE
It would have no excessiveness in the form of a radiator cap, but the water intake concealed under the cowl; it would have for the starting switch a button on the instrument board, in combination with the horn button and light switch at the center of the steering wheel; the chassis oiled by the touch of a lever; smaller wheels; unity of design in lamps, ignitions, handlebars, and other details; rust-proof chromium steel in all shipping parts; rubber for engine and chassis mountings to absorb shock and noise; down-draft carburetion, producing more power through the downward flow of gasoline, and, possibly most important of all, its power plant would be hatched to the front wheels.

Unlike the woman paragon of King Solomon's poem, there is no single combination of all these things, but above and many others indicate the daring and brilliant innovations with which the automobile industry takes a running jump into this current and still enigmatic year.

The show displays plenty of fours, sixes, eights and sixteens, but it looks as if the close competition for the months ahead would be between the sixes and the eights—not to disparage the hard-working fours and the space-grabbing sixteens, but the crowding appears in the six-eight zone as it usually does in a crap game.

A four-year course at Boston Tech would be a necessary preliminary for anyone attempting to describe completely and accurately the year's technical improvements and changes in automobiles as revealed at the show. There are hidden gadgets in power, lighting, transmission, carburetion and all the rest of it which do not appear on the surface but which sum up a period of tremendous technical advance. Whether all this is an impulsion from the brave days of the bull market does not appear, but it is clear that, whatever happened to the industry a few months ago, it did nothing more than step on the gas.

One might have expected that, in way of retrenchment, leading display booths would substitute two-dollar gardenias or cape jasmine for ten dollar orchids—but not so. The orchids are there and, altogether, the show is just a little more orchidaceous than ever. There are new varnishes on exhibit floors and salesmen are draped in usual intricately tailored morning coats.

This pantheon of steel, lacquer, speed, power and magical design is recommended for anyone who needs a reminder of a new industrial momentum which is not easily slowed down.

TRY TO RUSH WORK AT HAGUE CONFERENCE

The Hague—(AP)—Representatives of the six inviting powers to the second conference on reparations conferred here today to see what they could do toward hastening negotiations and terminating the meeting.

Some fear of possible prolongation of the conference has arisen as a result of the inability of the Austrians, the Czechs, the Rumanians and Jugoslavs to terminate their negotiations on the so-called oriental reparations. Despite a virtual agreement as to their differences.

Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, and Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, especially wished to terminate the conference this week is possible.

The inviting powers were understood to be disposed to give warning to the smaller creditors that the Young plan will be approved and applied without their agreement if they persist in keeping their problems outstanding.

The powers of the Little Entente on the other hand were said to have conferred already and to have decided to put up a united front in order to protect their own interests.

RAILROADS STILL QUIET OVER PLANS TO CONSOLIDATE

Expect Action Soon, However, Between B. and O. and Nickle Plate

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press

Wall Street, New York—(CPA)—(Financial Review and Outlook)—Although two weeks have elapsed since the publication of the interstate commerce commission's plan of railroad consolidation, no official moves have yet been made by executives of the roads around which the 19 American groups center, in the way of registering their approval or disapproval of it.

It is expected, however, that shortly the Baltimore & Ohio and the Nickel Plate interests, will confer on the plan, which favored both to a greater extent than others in their own territory and followed out lines toward which they have for some time been directing their energies.

Outside of railroad circles there is a significant indifference to the general subject of railroad consolidations. This is not strange in view of the fact that leading members of the interstate commerce commission plan to see little value in it from the standpoint of economy and from that of rendering greater service to the public. Many railroad executives in private conversation state that they would prefer to maintain their present status rather than to be linked with some other roads which they do not feel fit in with systems now successfully administered.

OVERLOOK CREDIT

In the attention that has been directed to the merger aspects of the interstate commerce plan, the strong commendation by the commission of existing railroad credit and transportation status has been overlooked. To railroad stockholders this should be extremely satisfactory. On this subject Commissioner Eastman in his concurring opinion said:

"So far as service, operating efficiency in general, and ability to finance on reasonable terms are concerned, the status of the railroad has been improving rapidly and steadily during the past few years and now appears to be better than ever before. This improvement has been extended to the so-called weak lines. Commissioner McManamy went even further in boosting the condition of the roads. This is what he said: "Never have the railroads collectively or singly been in as good condition physically and financially as they are, that is, those which actually need help, can be counted on the fingers of one hand."

Equipment is ample and our inspections show it to be in better condition than ever before and improvements are going steadily forward. Orders for new material and equipment are sufficient to cover anticipated needs. There has been no shortage for more than five years. Net ton miles per mile of road per day, gross and net train loads, gross ton miles per train hour, net ton miles per car day, cars per train, and other operating records by which efficiency is measured are all better than ever before recorded.

No Wall Street bull on railroad stocks could have listed a stronger collection of facts favorable to the carriers than has this member of the commission, who has been at times considered one of its radical promoters and not favorable to some policies which the transportation industry have advocated or put into effect.

NEW PRESIDENT OF R. C. A. ONCE ACTED AS MESSENGER BOY

David Sarnoff, 39. Has Only Been in This Country 30 Years

BY ROBERT MACK Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press

Washington—(AP)—From messenger boy to president describes the rise of David Sarnoff, who at the age of 9 migrated to America from Russia. It was 30 years ago when Sarnoff set foot on American soil. Saturday he took over the presidency of the Radio Corporation of America, supreme in the fields of radio manufacturing, entertainment and communications.

Elevation of Mr. Sarnoff to the direction of the R. C. A. was noted by the board of directors at its first meeting of the new year.

Two other important changes were made. Owen D. Young, who since 1919, has been chairman of its board of directors, resigned from that post. He was elected chairman of an executive committee, also created at the meeting. General James G. Harbord, president of the company, was appointed to succeed Mr. Young as chairman of the board.

Mr. Sarnoff since last year has been executive vice president of the R. C. A. and in that capacity managed the affairs of the company. He now assumes the title of president and will have under his immediate supervision the direction, not alone of the vast radio manufacturing operations of the company, but of the operations of its subsidiaries, which include R. C. A. Communications Inc., Radiomarine Corporation of America and other companies. Besides these are several affiliated companies, including the National Broadcasting Company, Radio-Kent-Orpheum, Radio-Victor Corporation, R. C. A. CAREER LIKE STORY

The career of Mr. Sarnoff reads like a fairy tale. Of Jewish parentage, he was born in Russia in 1891. He came to the United States in 1900. At the age of 15, in 1906, he began his career in communications as a messenger with the Commercial Cable Co. During the same year he transferred to the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co. of America, as an office boy. The following year he won his spurs as a junior radio operator and then began his meteoric rise, which at the age of 39 finds him at the helm of one of the largest corporations in the world.

No reasons for the changes in executive personnel of the R. C. A. are given. In his testimony last month before the senate interstate commerce committee, Mr. Young said the board of directors of the R. C. A., comprising a score of members, now was so large as to be unwieldy. Members of the senate committee expressed surprise that so large an organization did not have an executive committee to act for its board of directors. Perhaps the shifts grew out of the discussions before the committee.

General Harbord, who was chief of staff for General John J. Pershing during the World War, joined the R. C. A. in 1922, when he resigned from the army.

DRY-CLEANED

A party of actors were discussing a co-worker who was out of a job.

"The trouble with Smith," said one, "is that he is always untidy. He doesn't keep himself clean."

Said another, with a trace of bitterness, "Well, he ought to be clean. He's always sponging."—Tit-Bits.

MEN O' WAR

The U. S. S. Jason, last of the navy's colliers.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of articles on the strength of the U. S. navy, especially in comparison with that of Great Britain. The articles are of special interest in view of the approaching arms limitation conference at London.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Battleships, cruisers, destroyers, submarines and virtually all other naval vessels are burning oil today instead of coal, so there is little or no use for colliers as such.

Colliers were designed and fitted to carry coal and had special appliances to handle it. The use of oil enabled battle-ships to sail faster.

Now, however, the U. S. navy has only one collier, the Jason, which is being used as an aircraft tender.

Armed with four 4-inch guns, she is 20,000 tons in displacement, 336 feet at the beam and 45 feet in draft.

The Jason has a complement of 185 officers and men and costs $4,000,000 a year to operate. She is the last of a fleet of colliers considered essential to the navy by a fleet of oil tankers.

FILM COWBOY IS HELD ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Nogales, Ariz.—(AP)—Art Acord, film cowboy, today was in jail here awaiting return to Los Angeles to face trial on charges of liquor possession.

Acord was arrested last night by Robert E. Ferguson, an operative for a surety company that posted bond for the actor's release from jail following his arrest several weeks ago.

Ferguson said when he found Acord in a local hotel the movie cowpuncher drew a knife and forced the officer into a closet. Acord then crashed through a window and was about to drop to the ground when he was nabbed by a deputy sheriff.

Sheriff H. J. Patterson ordered the actor locked up until instructions are received from Los Angeles.

The will of Mr. Hubert, who died at Cannes, France, Feb. 14, 1923, provided that three-fourths of his estate be divided among a group of religious, charitable and benevolent institutions to be selected by a committee of three prominent citizens.

Mr. Coolidge, Mr. Smith and Mr. Rosenwald, chosen by trustees of the estate, began their investigations last summer with Mr. Coolidge as chairman.

After investigating more than 600 organizations they chose the 34 beneficiaries, divided into three classes, 15 to share in cash immediately available from the estate, 8 to share in the first $1,000,000 of unliquidated assets, and 11 to share in the remaining unliquidated assets.

The plan under which the money is to be distributed contemplates that more than $9,000,000 additional be raised by beneficiary organizations.

DIVISION OF ESTATE
The distribution of $4,800,000 in available cash is as follows:
St. Vincent's hospital, New York, $500,000.

Boy Scouts of America, $500,000.
Girl Scouts, Inc., $500,000.
Provident hospital, Chicago, $500,000.

Beekman Street hospital, New York, $500,000.
The Children's Aid society, New York, $200,000.

The American National Red Cross, for a New York building, $375,000.
The Young Men's Christian association, Jersey City, N. J., $250,000.
The New York Foundling hospital, $50,000.

International Migration Service, Inc., American branch, $50,000.
Jewish Mental Health society, New York, $250,000.

National Committee for Mental Hygiene, $250,000.
The Jewish Theological Seminary of America, $250,000.

The Young Men's Hebrew association, New York, $175,000.
New York university, $250,000.

Among the institutions sharing in the first $1,000,000 of unliquidated assets are: University of Chicago, $250,000; Howard university, Washington, D. C., $200,000; and William and Mary college, Williamsburg, Va., $50,000.

Although the allocation of the amounts in the first two classes leaves but $400,000 for the third class, the members of the committee said that the estimate of $8,000,000 as what could be realized from the estate was conservative, and the actual amount left for the last 11 beneficiaries might be more than was now apparent.

Beneficiaries under this group include the Leonard Wood Memorial fund for the eradication of Leprosy, Smith college, Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore and Rollins college, Winter Park, Fla.

In a statement the committee said they selected institutions and organizations planning capital expenditures rather than those requiring funds for operation and had considered the number of persons benefited as a guide to the selections.

ASK BETTER UNIFORMS FOR AMERICAN SOLDIER

Washington—(AP)—The American soldier must have better uniforms, according to the opinion of Major General Summerall, chief of the army staff, who believes the time will come when the army will have to be supplied with blue dress uniforms.

Discussing the army uniform before a house appropriations war department sub-committee, he said the lack of a ceremonial dress uniform hurt American soldiers at great disadvantage in comparison with the navy and marine corps and with foreign troops, when they came in contact with them.

"The training of an army for war consists of a number of elements," the general said, "and one of them is the military spirit that makes a man fight. Through all history one means of cultivating that military spirit is the ceremonial dress uniform."

"They estimate him very largely by the way he looks. If he dresses badly, he looks badly and he is very apt to behave less correctly than if he were well dressed. Those are psychological factors that are inseparable from the military life. We have always dressed them well until now."

CLAIMS GLIDER LOOPS ARE FIRST ON RECORD

Chicago—(AP)—The claim was made today by Edward B. Heath, aviator, that his feat of looping the loop in a glider yesterday was the first of its kind on record.

Heath, towed by an airplane, reached a height of 1,200 feet before his glider was released. He made four loops before the glider settled to the field a short distance from the starting place.

ITALIAN RULER GIVES FUND TO FUTURE BRIDES

Rome—(AP)—King Victor Emmanuel today in honor of his son's approaching marriage gave the government of Rome $500,000 lire, or about $28,000, to be used as a fund for wedding gifts for poor girls. The made another sum for the king gave for the same purpose on the occasion of the wedding of the crown prince's elder sister, Yolanda.

BEWARE BONDS THAT ARE BONDS IN NAME ONLY, IS WARNING

They Are No Better Than Stock on Which They Are a Lien

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES

New York—The argument in favor of the bond over the common stock is seriously weakened by the market.

ing of a bond, which is a bond in name only, the one secured by the deposit of stock of subsidiaries and the obligation of a corporation the only income of which is stock of subsidiaries. Such a bond is no better than the stock on which it is a lien.

I had occasion recently to analyze a public utility issue of this kind. In the first place it was unsecured and junior to a mortgage bond. That in itself was a drawback but it was then apparent that the only assets of the debtor company were stock in subsidiaries and that these subsidiaries had preferred stock and bonds of their own outstanding. Therefore not only the interest on the bonds of the subsidiaries but the dividends on the preferred stocks of the subsidiaries were a prior charge to dividends on the common stock from which they drew interest on the bonds of the holding company in question.

It was even more involved than this. The subsidiaries already mentioned were themselves holding companies and had no income except from the stocks they owned which were in turn preceded by preferred stocks and by bonds dividends and interest, which of the course, came ahead of the surplus available for the common.

Now it can readily be seen that the bond with which we began this discussion must take an investment rating much below the common stock of the operating companies. A bond of that kind ought to reflect in its market price its quality and it generally does but the inexperienced investor is too often deceived thereby. Incidentally this bond was held by a financial institution prohibited by law from owning common stocks.

DEVICE ELIMINATES AUTO GAS IS CLAIM

Baltimore, Md.—(AP)—A practical means of eliminating carbon monoxide, the gas that takes an annual toll of hundreds of lives when automobiles engines are left running in closed garages, is claimed in the discovery of a Johns Hopkins university professor, announced today.

Dr. J. C. W. Frazer made the announcement that tests had shown a motor equipped with his device could run indefinitely in a closed garage without liberating carbon monoxide. Offensive odors from automobile exhausts, which abound in heavy traffic can be suppressed by the chemical action and smoke also will be entirely consumed, Prof. Frazer added. The scientist's discovery is a chemical catalyst which, when the exhaust vapors pass over it, mixed with air, converts the monoxide to harmless carbon dioxide. A device to accomplish this has been made and has operated successfully in road tests under all kinds of driving conditions, he said.

MAY CENSOR PLANE STUNTS IN MOVIES TO STOP CRASHES

Insurance Companies Apt to Increase Rates 10 Per Cent

BY JESSIE HENDERSON
Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press
Hollywood, Calif.—The consequences of import to the film colony have followed swiftly in the wake of Thursday's airplane tragedy, in which eight motor picture people and two pilots lost their lives. One is discussion by public and private individuals, as well as by officials of picture corporations, of a tentative plan to censor "stunts" called for in scenes with a view to eliminating of serious hazards, the other a 10 per cent raise in rates by insurance companies on anything insurable connected with an aviation "shot" in the movies.

Half a dozen fatal accidents have occurred during airplane movie stunts out here in the last ten years. They began with the death of "Daredevil" Omar Yackel, pilot and his passenger, "Slim" Elliott, a "stunt man," when their plane fell in flames to one of Hollywood's boulevards in 1920. Most of the accidents have been fairly recent, however.

One man was killed in each of two war aviation films made during the last three years and one girl, doubling for a star, was fatally injured when her parachute failed to open. A half dozen lesser accidents have involved injuries but not loss of life.

So real a hazard exists in aviation scenes that before the tragedy at Redondo the insurance companies had begun to refuse as risks actors taking part in flight episodes.

For example, it was announced a few weeks ago that "Buddy" Rogers had been assigned a role as aviator in a war film. The next morning a representative of an insurance company went out to the lot and backed by legal authority, curtailed the length of time which the Rogers policy was to run.

ACCIDENTS NUMEROUS
In addition to the deaths in taking of aviation scenes, the filming of war pictures has not been accompanied without fatalities. An "expert" was killed in a collision of gun carriage during the filming of such a picture last month. In that accident two horses were so badly injured they had to be shot. A few years ago a surplus charge of powder, rammed into the wooden guns of a craft built to represent a frigate of the American navy, blew up the deck, injured several actors and endangered the lives of all of them.

The readiness of motion picture officials and actors to agree with public opinion here that dangerous "stunts" should be eliminated is, accordingly, understandable. The fact that hundreds of passing motorists and picknickers at Redondo beach less than Thursday's tragedy is not the least ghastly phase of this disaster.

Married less than two years ago, Mary Astor and her husband, Kenneth Hawks, the director who lost his life at Redondo, were devoted to each other. Only last summer they built a beautiful house in the Hollywood Hills and on the dressing table on her boudoir Mary always kept a photograph of herself and her husband taken upon their wedding day. The house they built was truly a home.

Though to Hollywood Thursday's disaster was a deep, personal tragedy, involving the loss of some of the most highly respected and popular members of the picture community, the traditional trouper spirit of "On with the play" became quickly manifest. Ingrained in the spirit of every actor is the principal of the play first, individual grief second. In this case to throw themselves with desperate energy back into the business in hand truly took courage of a high order.

New York—About 2,000,000 persons more than 65 years old are partly or wholly dependent for support on other in the United States, says Abraham Epstein, secretary of the American Association for Old Age Security.

CONGRESSMEN TO FACE HARD WORK STARTING MONDAY

Wisconsin Representatives Have Many Difficult Com- mittee Jobs

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Washington Correspondent of the Post-Crescent)

Washington — Wisconsin congressmen will get down to hard labor on their committees soon after the House of Representatives convenes again on Monday.

As chairman of the Committee on Invalid Pensions, Representative John M. Nelson of Madison will start out to prepare a bill granting pensions and increases to several thousand Civil War veterans, their widows, and dependent children. This "omnibus pension bill" will name each person to benefit therefrom, all of them being people who for some reason are not eligible to pensions or pension increases under the existing law.

As a member of the Pensions committee, Representative Hubert H. Peavey of Washburn, if he is back in town, will be working on a similar bill to benefit veterans and their dependents who served in wars other than the Civil War or the World War and in the regular army establishment.

The Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments, of which Representatives Martin Hall of Black River Falls and John C. Schafer of Milwaukee are members, will begin hearings on a bill to consolidate all activities affecting veterans of the World War with a view to improve these facilities and affecting economies in their administration. It will also investigate Saint Elizabeth's, the government hospital for the insane, with particular reference to the treatment of World War veterans there.

STUDY SCHNEIDER BILLS
Other measures for reorganization of government offices will also come before this committee later.

The committee on Roads, of which Representative Nelson is a member, has before it scores of bills authorizing the extension of the present federal-aid system and bills for systems of transcontinental highways, several of which provide for roads crossing Wisconsin. Some of these measures will doubtless go through as part of President Hoover's plan for expanding public works during periods of business depression.

The Indian Affairs committee, of which Representative Peavey is a member, has before it bills introduced by Representative George J. Schneider of Appleton and Representative Florian J. Lampert of Oshkosh authorizing Indian hospitals in Wisconsin.

The committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, of which Representative Charles A. Kading of Watertown is a member, has before it a bill authorizing a five-year program of construction of fisheries, which provides for a $50,000 fish-cultural substation in southern Wisconsin. Representative Lampert has introduced a bill, referred to this committee, for a Wisconsin fish-cultural station in his district.

The committee on the Civil Service, of which Representative Schneider is a member, will consider bills to raise the pay of government employees and to correct defects in the Welch bill passed during the 70th congress increasing salaries in the Civil Service.

The committee on Immigration and Naturalization, of which Representative Schneider is a member, will consider his bill to stop leaks by which Chinese now get into this country and other important immigration and naturalization matters, including bills to equalize the status of men and women under the immigration and naturalization laws.

MANY OTHER QUESTIONS
The committee on the District of Columbia, of which Representatives Hall and Lampert are members, will have the usual number of questions of local interest to Wisconsin which stir the National Capital practically into a frenzy. There are a street car merger, several police matters, and scores of other transportation affairs of the metropolis which must be attended to by this committee.

The Committee on Education, of which Representative Schafer is a member, has before it the bill to continue and expand the vocational rehabilitation measure under which Wisconsin now gets some $25,000 a year from Uncle Sam to help restore the earning power of people disabled in industrial and other accidents. The committee will also consider the bill favored by the National Education Association to establish a federal department of education, with a secretary of education in the president's cabinet, a bill to expand federal aid to state in agricultural education, and other measures.

The Committee on Military Affairs, of which Representative William H. Safford of Milwaukee is a member, will take up bills providing for extensive construction programs at military posts and other measures affecting the army.

The Ways and Means committee, of which Representative James A. Frear of Hudson is a member, has completed its big job of the year—consideration of the tariff bill—and also finished the only tax reduction measure expected soon.

Persons committee No. 1, of which Representative Kading is a member, will start hearings promptly on the contested elections of Representative Rust Bryan of Owen, Wis., whose defeated opponent contends she has not been a citizen long enough to qualify because she lost her citizenship upon marriage to a British army officer, and then regained it.

Then there is Representative Louis L. Snow of Indiana, whose defeated opponent contends that years of residence in Washington as a newspaper correspondent rendered Ludlow not a resident of Indiana. Elections No. 2, of which Representative Schafer is a member, will take up other contested cases.

The Foreign Affairs committee, of which Representative Henry Allen Cooper of Racine is a member, will again consider means for taking in-

New Year's Celebrations New York Society's Gayest

BY ADELAIDE KERR
New York — (AP) — With a tinkle of chimes, a tooting of horns and the gayest parties they have ever known New York's fashionables spelled their welcome to 1930—a welcome that began with the first days of the week and stretched in crimson capital letters into the new year.

New Year's eve saw hundreds of glittering parties in homes and hotels and night clubs with noise-crackers, confetti and strains of jazz adding to the hilarity. The debutantes—butterflies of 1929—who must fold their wings in a few days—made the most of the gaiety, flitting from party to party, while their elders followed.

All around the town—by taxi, elevated, subway and on foot—the debutantes and their cavaliers raced to celebrate the debut of Lois Lindon-Smith, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lindon-Smith which began the New Year festivities Sunday night. They were invited to the coming-out party by a rhyme which read:

"If you're striving to get thinner Attend the goggle and go dinner December 29th's the date Meet at the Taylor's place at 8."

The young folks assembled at the home of the debutante's brother-in-law, William Ambrose Taylor and began the "goggle and go" proceedings by which they acquired their dinner. Another rhyme sent them racing by subway to the oyster bar in Grand Central station for their first course and others sent them by taxi and on foot, arrayed in evening clothes as they were, to restaurants for turkey and ice cream.

The "race" ended in the Lindon-Smith apartment where they were greeted by the debutante, for whom the party was a surprise. The rest of the evening was spent in dancing.

Another amusing event was the luncheon given Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Owen Johnson, when a rehearsal of a new opera was offered for the guests.

In honor of Peter Chambers, the son-in-law of the host, who will make his operatic debut with the American Opera company in the title role of the "Marriage of Figaro" Jan. 10, the guests were taken after luncheon to see the rehearsal of

"Yolanda and Cyprius" which the same company will present in the near future.

Tuesday found the calendar crowded with the smart folk, devoted to parties, found it almost impossible to attend half the festivities.

The butterflies and their cavaliers began with the ball which Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hawgood gave in honor of their debutante daughter, Dorothy, at Sherry's. There they were greeted by the debutante who wore a frock of white more ornamented with rhinestones and seed pearls and received her guests before a large silver screen. More than one butterfly paused to eye her bouquet, a silvered ruff, covered with orchids, sweetheart roses and blue lace flowers.

They lingered awhile to dance in the ballroom hung in silver blue balloons that resembled huge bunches of grapes and then hurried on to the party which Mr. and Mrs. Richard Aldrich gave at the Ritz Carlton for their daughter, Margaret.

Once more they stepped into a scene scented with the perfume of flowers and accented by strains of music. But this time the decorations were in pink lilies and hothouse, and the music before dancing was fur-ished by an old-fashioned orchestra of flute, oboe, bassoon and French horn.

After the supper served from small tables decked with rosy ferns and smiling, the butterflies assembled in the ballroom for the party given for Miss Helen Houston in the Crystal room of the Ritz Carlton. If their heads were weary their heels failed to lag and they danced on until the morning hours.

The golden wedding anniversary is the day set aside for celebrating the centennial of the first installment on the wedding ring.

Notice is hereby given that the Annual Meeting of the Members of the Central Mutual Life and Cyclopedia Insurance Company of Appleton, Wisconsin for the Election of the Board of Directors and the transaction of such business as may legally come before such Meeting will be held at the office of the Secretary at Horonville, Oshkosh County, Wisconsin, on the 10th day of January 1930, at 10 o'clock A. The concert, which will be held at Lawrence Memorial chapel on Feb. 7, will feature the Green Bay band, made up of players from both the East and West high schools, the Oshkosh high school chorus and the Appleton orchestra.

The musical festival association was organized the first part of December for the purpose of stimulating musical interest among students and townspeople and to provide a substitute for state music tournaments, which are becoming a problem in high school circles.

At the athletic meeting officers for 1930 will be elected and the 1930 football schedule, the 1930-31 basketball schedule and the 1930 track schedule will be selected.

Plans for the first concert under the auspices of the music association will be made at the music meeting to be held Wednesday morning. For COLDS

We all catch colds and they can make us miserable; but yours needn't last long if you will do this: Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin just as soon as possible after a cold starts. Stay in the house if you can—keep warm. Repeat with another tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin every three or four hours, if those symptoms of cold persist. Take a good laxative when you retire, and keep bowels open. If throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in a quarter-glassful of water and gargle. This soothes inflammation and reduces infection. There is nothing like Bayer Aspirin for a cold, or sore throat. And it relieves aches and pains almost instantly. The genuine tablets, marked Bayer, are absolutely harmless to the heart.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monocrocinolide of Salicylic acid

Lawrence Cagers Lose To Marquette University, 26-23

VIKES IMPRESSIVE DESPITE DEFEAT; BIGGERS IS STAR

Late Start in First Period Is Costly to Denney's Quintet

BY GORDON E. MCINTYRE
MILWAUKEE—Lawrence college basketball team got its first taste of defeat Saturday night down here against Marquette and it was bitter. For the Vikings lost by only three points, 26 and 23, to a team they are confident they can beat at Appleton and a squad they might have trimmed here had they gotten started earlier in the first half.

Doped to lose by a large score to the Hilltoppers who have been meeting first class opposition for several weeks, Lawrence lived up to advance notices in the first half and then did an about face and battled the Milwaukeeans down to the last minute in an exhibition that had Coach Cord Lipe pacing the floor for fear his team was to take a trouncing.

The score at the end of the first half was 16 and 9 for Marquette but in the second period Lawrence held a 14 to 10 advantage.

Marquette won Saturday's melee because she had three players who were capable of "clicking" whenever they drove in near the basket while Lawrence had but one—Hayward Biggers. The Vikings registered nine field goals during the evening and five of them were chalked up opposite Biggers' name.

He was unable to offset the scoring of Rueli and Andrews and help watch over that ever potential threat, Marquette's captain, Jimmy O'Donnell. Andrews especially was playing a great game against Lawrence and counted four field goals, several of which were uncanny heaves. Had the Vikes been able to bottle up the lanky Shawano youth they would have won, but then O'Donnell probably would have gotten free making it six of one and a half dozen of the other.

Lawrence displayed one of the finest defensive games in many seasons and if another forward could be found who is half as sure of his shots as Biggers, Coach A. C. Denney will go places with his quintet before the season is over. However, sure shot forwards are scarce up at Lawrence and the team probably will have to struggle along as the shottless wonders.

Marquette was first to register in the game and with three or four points to the good the contest resolved itself into a defensive duel so that nearly ten minutes had elapsed before Lawrence tallied its first score. The points seemed to the Hilltoppers for they stepped out and took a comfortable lead that the Vikings brought to 16 and 9 at half time.

The second half was a battle down to the final gun with the Vikings getting the best of the exchange thanks to Biggers' shooting. However, the margin Marquette had in the first half was too much especially in the fact of Hilltoppers stalling in the last three minutes.

Biggers was the star of the evening's encounter and downstate sport scribbles were loud in their praise of the Viking forward. There seldom was a time that the Elgin youth was given a chance to drive in toward the basket but what he did not put the ball through the ring. But if future Lawrence opponents stop Biggers they've stopped the whole Viking team.

DUTRA, KIRKWOOD TIE FOR HONORS AT LONG BEACH OPEN

Driving Rain Forces Many Contenders to Abandon Efforts

LONG BEACH, CALIF.—(AP)—Olin Dutra of Santa Monica and Joe Kirkwood of Philadelphia today held jointly the championship honors of the fifth annual Long Beach $2,500 open golf tournament. The two professionals scored 215 each for the 54 holes of medal play.

Many leading contenders quit the field yesterday afternoon in the face of a driving rain which broke a drought here of nine months. As dusk was falling, Kirkwood turned in a sensational 69 to equal Dutra's first money score of 215, thus winning a fifty-fifty split of the $1,500 first prize money.

Dark horse mudders found the puddles and soaked greens to their liking, and Clarence Clark, young Tulsa, Okla., pro., ploughed into second prize money with a 69-78-73 for a total of 219. Dutra's card for the 54 holes was 67-73-75-215, and Kirkwood's 67-73-75-215.

Cauld, of Bridgeport, Conn., took third place with a 210, and Johnny Rogers, Denver, Colo., fourth with a total of 209.

Young Charles Seaver, 17-year-old Los Angeles prep school amateur, who led the qualifiers Saturday with a 69, one short of the course record, beat George von Elm, Detroit, for the amateur prize, he tied with John Farrell, of St. Augustine, Fla., Charles Gux of Hollywood, Calif., and W. H. Cox of Brooklyn, for first place in the medal play with a 221.

KLOEHNS, POWER COMPANY WIN IN "Y" CAGE LEAGUE

Garage Team Puts Four Former High School Stars on Court

SHADES of a former high school basketball team drifted about the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Saturday night when games were played in the Industrial basketball league. For one of the teams, the O. R. Kloehn company, sent a quintet on the floor that boasted four former high school cage aces and they made things unusually interesting for the Kaukauna Mulford and won their game, 28 and 22.

The other battle of the evening featured the Power company and the Citizens' Bank team, the victory going to the former by a narrow margin of 21 and 21. The Power company is undefeated in the conference.

Chuck Johnston at guard for the Kloehns led the assault on the hoop which resulted in the Appleton club counting a victory. Johnston hit the hoop five times in the last half after going scoreless in the initial period. The first half the game ended 7 and 6 for the Kloehns.

The Power Co. Banker game was a nip and tuck affair throughout. The Power company was led by Bowers who dropped seven field goals for his share in the evening's tall, three in the first half and four in the last. B. Tornow counted five goals for the Bankers, three in the initial period and two in the final. The score at half time was 12 and 11 in favor of the Bankers.

Ball Players Probably Will Be Banned From Ring

BY JOHN B. FOSTER
Copyright 1930

NEW YORK—While organized baseball is unlikely to pass a rule to prevent belligerent ball players, such as Arthur The Great Shires, from professional boxing, there is nothing to stop owners from inserting a clause in their contracts, much like the fine which puts a ban on big leaguers as far as golf is concerned. No baseball leader thinks Shires ever will be champion of anything in the ring, though many think some day he may be a member of a championship major league team because the bumptious player of his type, sooner or later get on pennant winning teams.

Other ball players have challenged Shires to box since he became glove mad and the spread of that sort of thing looked as if it might get ball players too much interested in this new way of getting easy spending money. Matching ball players against ball players, would be a good venture for shrewd promoters, who would watch anything on earth to get coin in a hurry.

A good ball player might involve himself in a boxing bout and break

RIFON TO MEET BELOIT COLLEGE QUINTET TUESDAY

Crimson Squad Expects Successful Season as Martin Returns

RIFON—The preliminary games of a matter of history, the Ripon college Red Men will open the Big Four conference campaign Tuesday night as hosts to the Coach Bob Jaggard's Beloit college quintette. Early season tests on the Ripon court were disappointing demonstrations, but the decisive victory last Friday evening over the Fond du Lac All-Stars has encouraged Coach Boie Pothoff's sophomores for the approaching conference opener.

Largely responsible for the rejuvenated red men cagers is the return of Capt. Donald (Red) Martin. The fiery little pilot reported to the squad Friday and announced himself fully recovered from the shoulder injury which has kept him from all of the preliminary games and from the major portion of the daily drills. His sparkling performances on the court in the last two days have been encouraging to the team. Martin's return made available an added alternate for one of the forward berths, both of which have been filled by inexperienced candidates.

NATIONAL LEAGUE PREXY OPTIMISTIC OVER COMING YEAR

John A. Heydler Expects Loop to Set New Attendance Mark

BY JOHN A. HEYDLER
President, National League
New York —(AP)—It is too early in the year to review the teams in our league for the 1930 pennant race and it is too early to predict what kind of a season we may expect. But judging from the growth and progress of the game the past three years and the general strong trend of the public to all sports, I am impelled to predict that 1930 will prove another great year for baseball in general and the national league in particular.

It is a fact that the attendance in our league championship games the past three years totaled 15,000,000. During the three years prior to this period our attendance was about 12,000,000.

Now last season for the first time in about a decade our race was over by about Sept. 1. I do not anticipate such a runaway by any club this year. Both the Boston and Cincinnati clubs will present a much stronger front at the start of the next race. Both teams will have new managers who have proved their capacity to develop and lead first division teams. Then the Philadelphia team only developed its real strength toward the end of last season. This club should prove a feature of the 1930 pennant race. So here are three second division teams upon which we can count to put up a real battle with the contenders from the start.

A better balanced league means a closer race, keener competition and as a natural result greater interest and attendance all over the circuit. It looks to me now as though we should have the best balanced league for 1930 in major league history, and therefore we have every reason to look forward with confidence to another great year.

FREELING PREACHES FAREWELL SERMON IN NEW LONDON CHURCH

New Officers Installed Sunday by Congregationalists

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Impressive services were held at the morning worship at the Congregational church Sunday morning. They included the formal installation of new officers, communion service and the farewell sermon preached by the pastor, the Rev. H. P. Freeling who has resigned and who next Sunday will take up a pastorate at Antigo. The sermon was heard by a large congregation, representing the unusually close contacts which the minister has made during his pastorate of more than six years.

The Rev. Freeling spoke from the text from Micah, 6:8. "What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God." The speaker pleaded with his listeners to bring the qualities of justice, mercy and humbleness into the ways of everyday living; to develop spiritually and morally so that each may grow above the petty thought. He asked that each strive to forget selfishness, conceits and develop foundations which nothing can shake from their firmness and stability.

Following the service, the pastor received informally his friends of the parish who tendered their regrets at his departure.

A number of informal affairs in their honor are being planned which will take place during the coming two weeks.

HIGH SCHOOL NOW IN NEENAH DISTRICT

Basketball Team Goes to Neenah Instead of Oconto Hereafter

New London—New London high school, which for two years has been a member of the Shawano district of Northwestern Wisconsin Inter-scholastic Athletic association, has recently been transferred to the Neenah district. This announcement was made by letter to R. J. McManis, superintendent of schools, by F. W. Neumann of Marinette. Because of this change New London will, if its basketball team is good enough, will play at Neenah in March instead of Oconto. The change will greatly facilitate matters, as Oconto is further removed and roads during that period of the year are nearly always difficult. For the past two years New London has been a member of the Shawano district, though prior to that time had been a member of the district to which it now is joined.

TWO INJURED AS CARS COLLIDE NEAR CALUMET

Stockbridge—Mr. and Mrs. Ben Faber of Fond du Lac were injured Friday evening about 10 o'clock when their car collided with another car and then struck a high tension post on highway 35 on the main road near Calumet about eight miles from the village of Stockbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Faber were returning to their home in Fond du Lac after visiting at the home of the latter's mother, Mary Brown in Stockbridge. At Calumet a car turned onto the highway directly in their path from the east. They collided with the car and then went head-on into a post. Both people were knocked unconscious. They were brought back to the Brown home by William Schroven of Stockbridge. The next morning Mrs. Faber was taken to a physician at Fond du Lac.

She was badly bruised and cut and an X-ray was taken to determine whether there was a skull fracture. Mr. Faber was badly bruised and shaken up. The occupants of the other car were unidentified and escaped without injury. The Faber car is completely wrecked.

Your Question And Its Answer

J.A. Panneck, D.C.
Palmer Chiropractor
QUESTION: I am a mother of three children. They are not at all well and I am wondering if any part or organ of the body may be affected by obstructed nerve supply at the spine?—Mrs. A. E.
ANSWER: The thing which is most difficult for many people to realize is that restoration of the displaced segment releases the cause of the illness and permits nature to send help and repairs to the sick part or organ. This is all that man can do, and unless the damage is beyond repair or the condition is too far advanced for nature to repair it. There are many people, and very intelligent ones, who will find it difficult to believe that the correction of a vertebral displacement will, to continue the example, relieve them of kidney trouble. Yet it is not even more amazing that they would have confidence in a medicine which must enter the kidneys by the indirect way of the stomach and the blood stream, and then accomplish the cure of a complicated condition they would not trust to the wise and vital principle in their own body? Moreover, the medicine introduced into the system does not go merely to the kidneys. It reaches every part and organ indiscriminately. When the kidneys are being so treated, the eyes, lungs, liver, and etc., are also treated with medicine never intended for healthy organs and certainly not beneficial to them. Yet that is what tradition and long training has induced people to believe and it is the most difficult thing for them to forget.

For years, until chiropractic has proven itself to millions, most of those who consulted chiropractors were chronic sufferers who had tried every other known means without relief. Chiropractic restored those people to health simply by releasing nature's obstructed nerve channels. By the successful treatment of difficult, seemingly hopeless cases, which nothing else could benefit, chiropractic first demonstrated its power and laid the foundation for its present universal success.

BASKETBALL TEAM DEFEATED, 32-9, BY SHAWANO FIVE

Kaukauna Cagers Are No Match for Larger, More Experienced Players

Kaukauna—Kaukauna high school cagers lost their first Northeastern Wisconsin Interscholastic league basketball game to Shawano by a 32 to 9 score Friday evening at Shawano. Coach Paul E. Little's aggregation felt keenly the loss of a good center. Koch, who was playing center in fine form, was unable to play until the end of the first semester as he is ineligible.

The towering Shawanos proved more than a match for the green Kaukauna five. Several times the offense of the Kaws worked, but the boys failed to locate the hoop almost every time they got within scoring distance.

Shawano, taking advantage of every break, scored easily and often. Coach F. Reed used many men during the game.

Coach Little's youngsters were too small to cope with the great height and were too inexperienced to use the fast breaking game to much advantage. P. VanDyke was high scorer for the locals. He made three baskets and one free throw for seven of the teams nine points. Dix made a basket for the other two points.

The next game will be played with Clintonville next Friday on the home floor.

R. C. A. ALLEGES INFRINGEMENTS ON WIRELESS PATENTS

Takes Another Step in Legal Battle Against Universal

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press
Washington (CPA)—Another step in its legal fight to the finish against the Universal Wireless Communications Co., Inc., has been taken by the Radio Corporation of America, with the filing of suits alleging infringement of radio communications patents in Buffalo and Newark.

In these two separate cases, R. C. A., along with companies associated with it in the ownership or licensing of the patents in question, charges that Universal is infringing vacuum tube, automatic crystal control and circuit patents. It asks for a preliminary injunction against the Buffalo company, which is authorized to create a national radio-telephone network competing with the Western Union and Postal, to restrain it from using certain of the patents.

For some time it has been indicated that R. C. A. would enter the courts against Universal with patent infringement suits. With its extensive patent holdings, it was contended that it is practically impossible to maintain radio-telephone communication without violating an RCA patent or one which it is licensed to use.

BEATS OUT R. C. A.

Universal beat out the R. C. A. as well as several other applicants, in the race for the limited number of frequencies available for public point-to-point use. With the 40 continental short wave frequencies allocated it, 119 cities in the United States must be linked by the end of 1931. It claimed exclusive rights to radio patents which make possible five-way communication on a single radio channel—which, if actually maintained, would be a step far in advance of the existing status of the art.

Three bills of complaint were filed in the United States district court in the Buffalo case. The plaintiffs were the R. C. A. and the General Electric Co., the R. C. A. and the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., and the R. C. A. and the Western Electric Co., Inc., respectively. The suits are based upon patents to Langmuir and Lowenstein, which relate to vacuum tubes to Cady, having to do with crystal controls for transmitters; to housekeeper, involving a method of sealing tubes, and to Schottky and Schottky, which relate to tubes and circuits.

The New Jersey case is based upon the De Forest Feed-Back patents, former Judge Thomas G. Haight, of Jersey City, filing the complaints for the R. C. A. and the A. T. & T. with the district court of New Jersey.

The De Forest Radio Co. was joined as a defendant with the Universal but only because of its interest in the De Forest patents, which are owned by the A. T. & T. but licensed to the R. C. A. No charge of infringement is made against the company.

JUDGE SIGNS ORDER

Pursuant to the application, District Judge William N. Runyon has signed an order to show cause why a preliminary injunction should be issued against Universal. This order is returnable in Newark on Jan. 20. Under its provisions, the Universal had until Jan. 6 to serve its replying affidavits and the plaintiffs until Jan. 13.

R. C. A. is making it difficult for the Universal to obtain its objective. From the start it has contended that the company, a newcomer in the radio field, should not have a prior right to the R. C. A. which has pioneered in communications development.

The filing of the suits complicates an already extremely complicated situation. Universal, with 14 stations completed and ready for commercial operation, is forced to remain idle because of the stay order issued recently by the court of appeals here, which the radio commission believes prevents it actually from licensing any of Universal's stations for commercial operation.

The commission has gone to the court of appeals with a motion for clarification of this order, so that it may proceed with the licensing, not alone of Universal's stations, but of other frequencies already allocated. It is expected that the Inter-city Radio-Telephone Co., which filed the motion for the stay order, will oppose the granting of the new motion. R. C. A. also is vitally interested in it and will endeavor to block any move to have it modified.

Industrial Peace Found In Plant Cooperation

Chicago — The road to industrial peace, marked in many factories by bitter strikes, lockouts, disputes and sporadic outbreaks of unemployment and wage reductions, runs smoothly and evenly in the factory of the largest manufacturer of men's clothing in the world.

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union and Hart, Schaffner & Marx have found that employer and employee can pull in the same direction—and this in a trade that never was noted for the prevalence of good relations between worker and boss.

They have survived the difficult transition from old-style methods to the modern system of mass production to mutual advantage. They are nearly 20 uninterrupted years of peace, and they look forward to at least that many more; and since their plan is being widely copied in the great industry here, it is worth examining.

RESPONSIBILITY ON BOTH SIDES

"It all depends on honor and responsibility—on both sides," says Samuel Levin, head of the union.

If a manufacturer once decides to work with a union he should try to strengthen it. In many factories where there is a union agreement the management is forever trying to undermine the union's power. That is not the case here. The management has discovered that it is in its interest to have a strong union.

Union control in the factory of Hart, Schaffner & Marx is a reality. Discipline of employees, for example, is almost entirely in the union's hands. The examiners who inspect the goods for quality of workmanship are union men. The union has a strong voice in such matters as wages, hours, working conditions, etc. No man can be put out of his job without having his case passed on by certain of his fellow-workers.

Thus the union has gained steady ground, a satisfactory wage level and power over working conditions. The company likewise, has been able to switch its entire industrial policy in a way that has meant better dividends. It has brought itself out of a severe industrial crisis. It has been able to increase its output and, in some cases, actually to reduce its number of employees—and this without having any trace of labor trouble.

"The company is highly satisfied with the plan," says Earl Dean Howard, director of labor for the firm.

In 1910 the company had its last strike. Following that strike an agreement was entered into with the union. A trade board was established, with five employers' representatives, five union representatives and an impartial chairman. This board was empowered to pass on all disputes. It had jurisdiction over all questions of employment, wage scales and the like. Appeals could be made to the board of arbitration already established in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and the Chicago Industrial Federation, whose rulings would be final.

Two weeks went past without a strike. Then, in 1912, a bad deal was made in suits of a fairly high price. The buying public was giving up its

FRANCE, FEARING NEW GERMAN ARMY, REBUILDS FORTS

Immense Chain of Frontier Fortifications Are Reconstructed

BY MINOTT SAUNDERS
Paris — While arguing for the submarine as a defensive naval weapon, France is remodeling her frontier fortifications against possible invasion by land on strictly defensive lines as well.

The new fortifications now in process of construction on France's southwestern, northern and south-western frontiers will be entirely different from the old line of forts that defended her border against Germany in 1914, according to War Minister Maginot. The system is intended, above all, to be utilized by the covering troops on the frontier itself in order to prevent its violation.

OLD FORTS ARE OUT

In addition to the permanent fortifications which will constantly be in readiness for use, field fortifications will play an important part in defense. Field fortifications are considered very effective in modern warfare, whereas the old style forts would be obsolete. They are being calculated to give the necessary depth to permanent defenses and to constitute a barrier in uncovered territory.

Maginot also declared that mobile fortification parks will provide retreats for rapid erection of field fortifications. This description of the plans now under way leaves no doubt that the chief aim of present French military precaution is to protect her frontiers and endeavor to avoid such an invasion as occurred in 1914.

It was admitted by Maginot that something as definite as national territory. This naturally remains exposed in modern warfare to aerial attacks. However strongly the frontiers are defended, "That is why our defensive aim of France is to create, not only a strong air force, but strong anti-aerial defense. Civilian population must also be defended."

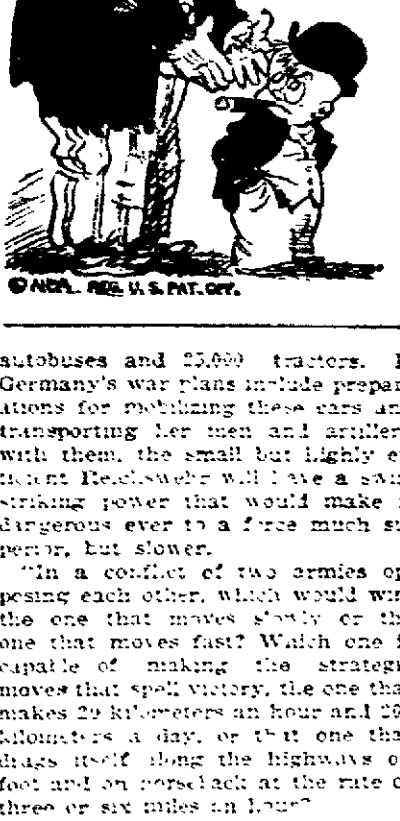

The new system of frontier fortifications will not be completed until 1931, Maginot explained, but he added that he was convinced that by the end of next year covering troops would find sufficient defenses ready to give them strong positions.

Almost coincident with Maginot's report, grave warnings against a motorized German attack have been uttered by General de Cugnot. Quoting the phrase of General von Seeckt, that Germany planned to make the next war a "swift war," he said that the French general said that Germany planned moving her entire army on wheels.

"What France needs to fear," he said, "is not the new military highways in the Rhinland, which must be interpreted as making possible a 'swift war,' but rather Germany's automobiles. There are 140,000 automobile trucks in Germany, 11,000 in France."

autobuses and 55,000 tractors. If Germany's war plans include preparations for mobilizing these cars and transporting her men and artillery with them, the small but highly efficient fleet would have a swift striking power that would make it dangerous even to a force much superior, but slower.

In a conflict of two armies opposing each other, which would win the one that moves slowly or the one that moves fast? Which one is capable of making the strategic moves that spell victory, the one that makes 20 kilometers an hour and 1,200 kilometers a day, or that one that drags itself along the highways at the rate of three or six miles an hour?

DEMANDS MODERNIZATION

"It is agonizing to ask oneself these questions," General de Cugnot said. "However, however, to think them over while there is still time."

General de Cugnot criticized the French army for clinging to old-fashioned methods and failing to take account of the latest military ideas, which, he said, have made the World War methods of organization out of date.

ATTORNEY GENERAL MAKES NEW RULING

Madison — (CP)—A boy committed to the state industrial school for boys at the age of nine years, must be taken before the court that sentenced him, for other assignment, the attorney general ruled in an opinion to the state board of correction.

The opinion held that the children's code prohibits assignment of boys under 12 to the industrial school, and that the board of correction tested the case before the attorney general because the commitment was made after the enactment of the children's code, the judge apparently being unfamiliar with the law, and the board wishing to avoid liability for contempt of court if it moved the boy without permission of the state law officer. One other case of the same kind exists, the board has found. It and future ones will be dealt with similarly.

OFFER PROTECTION AGAINST POOR SEEDS

State Will inspect Samples if They Are Sent by Purchaser

Madison—Noxious weed seeds need not be planted in Wisconsin fields, says A. L. Stone, state seed and weed commissioner. The state seed laboratory offers protection against seeds containing weeds as well as seed with a low germination percentage.

To avoid difficulties with seeds which are purchased from other farmers and other seed of unknown quality, Stone suggests sending samples to the laboratory for analysis. The state seed law, which is rigidly enforced, will protect purchasers.

The law provides that every bag of seed weighing more than one pound must be labeled. The label must bear the kind of seed, the percentage of pure seed, and the germination percentage. The plan also included under the requirements of the law requiring the labeling of corn and small grains. According to the law, presence of noxious weeds must also be shown on the label when they make up more than two per cent of the total. When more than five per cent of other crop seeds are contained their name and kind is required on the label.

Grimm and Montana alfalfa seed are sold in sealed sacks to correspond with the state law. A statement is attached from an accredited official stating that the seed is as represented, according to Stone.

To speed up returns from seeds tested at the state laboratory, Stone asks farmers to send their samples in early before the rush of the spring planting season. When this is done the laboratory is able to obtain and mail results in much less time.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young — to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards' vegetable compound is a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Oil Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

The Secret of Mohawk Pond
NATALIE SUMNER LINCOLN

BARRED GATES
BEFORE leaving for Milton Peggy rummaged in the drawers of her uncle's flat-top desk and found a small, leather-bound memorandum book.

On the first blank sheet she drew some lines, printing at the head of each column the words, "Date, Departure, Return" and at the top "Log of Yew Lodge, M. Prescott, Owner."

She entered the date, May 17, 1929, then glanced at her wrist watch.

Julia was brushing out the car when Peggy appeared, water pitcher in hand. While Julia filled the radiator, Peggy looked at her crankcase gauge and her tires, then climbed in behind the wheel, and backing the car around, headed down the lane.

She had gone 500 yards or more along the winding lane, when she put on her brakes sharply as a closed gate loomed up before her.

Considerably surprised, she climbed out and opened it. The gate had not been closed the night before. Once again she started and had covered a like distance when a second gate stopped her. It took a moment to unfasten the rusty latch and, neglecting to shut the gate, she climbed back into her car and sped on toward Milton.

At the general store, Peggy secured such supplies as they had, but it left Julia's list woefully incomplete. She found the clerk most obliging, however, and while filling her gasoline tank he gave her the names of shops in Litchfield where she might telephone her orders and have supplies sent by parcel post via the post office at Cornwall Bridge.

"It looks as though I'd have to become a vegetarian," she commented.

"Obadiah Evans might let you have chickens and ducks, provided he don't turn cranky," the clerk suggested. "He lives in the farmhouse next to the lane where you turn off the Milton road."

A chicken dinner loomed large in Peggy's mind, but there was no sign of Obadiah Evans at the well kept and recently painted farmhouse somewhat back from the Milton road, just beyond Mohawk Lane.

To her great annoyance, the first gate in the lane, the one with the rusty catch, was once more closed, and this time so securely fastened with heavy wire that she failed to unlatch it. She went back to her car to search for her tool kit and a pair of pliers. She was about to lift the front seat when, through a gap in the trees to her left, she caught sight of a man in the pasture beyond. Peggy pressed the button of her motor horn. The man approached with maddening slowness.

"Please hurry," she called, and he quickened his footsteps. "I can't get the gate open."

Instead of going toward it, the man came up to her car.

"This lane is privately owned," he stated brusquely.

"It is owned by me," she responded, and met his steadfast regard with an equally steady look. "I am Miss Prescott."

"Oh!" The ejaculation escaped unwittingly and again the man and the girl eyed each other.

The angry sparkle in her eyes and her heightened color added to the charming picture that she made. Standing fully six feet, two inches, his farm clothes hanging loosely on his thin frame, the man's tanned cheeks reddened also.

"Mr. Obadiah Evans?" she inquired cordial.

He shook his head.

"Pop," he called over his shoulder, and for the first time Peggy became aware that another man was approaching her car.

"This is Miss Prescott, Pop," Obadiah Evans advanced with rapid strides.

"I am pleased to see you," he said, extending a huge hand. "You uncle and I were real friendly. When did you get here?"

"Last night," smiling, she pointed through the windshield. "These gates were hospitably open then."

Obadiah considered her for a moment before addressing his silent companion.

"The gates were open, hen? How about it, Jim?"

But Jim apparently did not hear for, halfway to the closed gate, he kept steadily on without turning about.

"Mr. Evans," Peggy said, mindful of her mission "I find it difficult to get provisions; can you help me out?"

The farmer stroked his chin.

"Chickens?" he suggested and she nodded a quick assent. "Eggs, too?"

"And milk—" Her eyes lit with a friendly smile. "Is that asking too much?"

Obadiah's shrewd glance left her and centered on Jim, returning from opening the gate.

"I guess we can accommodate," Jim's Yankee twang grew more pronounced. "You can look for the eggs and milk tomorrow." He nodded a friendly good-by. "Where are you going, Jim?" as the latter sprang on the running board of the moving car.

"To the next gate; that's wired, too," and Jim tightened his hold as the car sped through the gate and around the curve.

Peggy's utter disregard of the roughness of the lane and its numerous curves drew a remonstrance from the man clinging on the running board.

"Go easy," he exclaimed, "or you'll break a spring." Then, as the front wheels caught in a deep rut and squal the car around: "Shall I drive?"

The girl's cheeks flamed red; that his criticism was just made it rankle the more. The four-wheel broke brought the car to a stop almost on top of the second gate.

Peggy, her eyes on Jim as he wrestled with the wretched latch, opened and closed her handbag with a vicious snap. What was there about the man to irritate her?

The elder Evans had met her friendly advances in like spirit, but Jim—Why the very set of his shoulders radiated disapproval—was he in vulgar parlance, trying to take her down a peg? A glance at her wrist watch showed that she had but three minutes to make Yew Lodge.

Peggy's foot came down on the accelerator and the car, in second gear, shot through the opening. At the same moment her extended hand released a half dollar.

As Jim caught the tip, the silver coin struck against the amethyst of his class ring, worn with its tell-tale setting turned palm inward.

$130,000 SOUGHT FOR MAINTENANCE ALONG FOX RIVER

Recommendation for This Sum Is Made in Bill Reported to House

BY RUBY A. BLACK (Post-Crescent Wash. Cor.)

Washington—An appropriation of $130,000 for maintenance of the Fox river during the fiscal year 1931 is provided in the $55,000,000 lump sum for waterways improvements contained in the War department appropriation bill reported to the House of Representatives today by the Appropriations committee.

The chief of engineers for rivers and harbors has already reported that the engineers plan to use the money as follows: $114,500 for reconstruction of the badly decayed timber dam at Rapids Croche; $9,000 for dredging; and $6,500 for engineering and contingencies.

During the current fiscal year of 1930, which runs from July 1, 1929 through June 30, 1930, $170,882 is being spent on the Fox river, including $11,500 for completion and deepening of the rock cut at Drunkards Point, already done; $125,000 for completion of the rebuilding of 625 feet of spillway of De Pere dam; and $20,382 for maintenance dredging throughout the year; and $19,432 for engineering and contingencies.

Brig. Gen. Herbert Deakyn, assistant chief of engineers, told the Appropriations committee that the War department is now negotiating with Canada to bring about cooperative action for the development of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway.

COURT TO PASS ON GUILT OF BUYER

conspiracy to sell. In other words the government is stressing the idea that the order to transport was more important than the purchase itself because, under the law, transportation of liquor is an offense and that the purchaser indirectly seeks to do through some one else that which is prohibited by law.

There is some question in congress as to whether the existing law is strong enough to convict purchasers who do not order transportation. Under the eighteenth amendment congress would have the right to make the purchaser guilty of an offense because the amendment prohibits the sale and both parties to the transaction could be included by congress if it so desired. The drys, however, are not in agreement as to the wisdom of asking for clarifying legislation at this time, believing that the supreme court of the United States first should rule on the case which the government is appealing because in most instances an order to a bootlegger is accompanied by an order to deliver.

The existing law makes the transportation of unlawfully acquired liquor an offense. The whole point is whether when one individual asks another to perform a service which is in violation of law, such request constitutes a conspiracy.

The supreme court, of course, could find technical reasons for not wishing to review the case and this would leave the matter unsettled, but the highest court has not hesitated in the past to go into the merits of prohibition violation and the hope is expressed that the famous Norris case as the pending appeal is called, will be a guide to congress no matter which way the decision is rendered.

If existing law is sufficient, congress will therefore not find itself required to take any further steps. If the supreme court on the other hand avoids a decision, the drys will seek authority from congress for prosecution of the buyer.

HUBER AGREES WITH HOOVER ON BUSINESS

Milwaukee—(AP)—Lieutenant Governor Henry A. Huber, Stoughton, who "has not always agreed with President Hoover," approved of the national executive's stand for the independent business man, in a speech before the local Optimists club here today.

"President Hoover in his acceptance address at Palo Alto said that the tests of business is not its size but its integrity and usefulness for the purpose and with that statement I fully agree," declared Mr. Huber.

"When the president added that the foundation of American business is the independent business man, I also agree. And when he further adds that we must maintain the opportunity of the independent business man to render individual service and that such men must be protected from any domination or from predatory business, I tell you that his words in this hour of threatened chain bank crisis sound like a trumpet call from Mt. Sinai. It is a time when those faithful to Wisconsin must counsel for the common good."

Lt. Gov. Huber's address was largely devoted to reiteration of his stand against chain banking.

$1,109,000 ASKED FOR SOLDIERS HOME

Appropriation Is Provided in Bill Reported to House

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington—An appropriation of $1,109,000 for maintenance of the Northwestern Branch of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers at Milwaukee for the fiscal year 1931 is provided in the War Department appropriations bill reported to the House of Representatives by the Appropriations committee today.

This is an increase of $10,000 over the appropriation for the current fiscal year. Only the Pacific Branch and the Central branch get the 11 soldiers' homes get higher appropriations than the Northwestern branch in this bill.

The appropriation is allocated as follows: $88,000 for current expenses; $30,000 for subsistence; $165,500 for household; $420,000 for hospital; $500 for transportation; $18,000 for repairs; $22,000 for the farm.

The Northwestern branch has about 500 more inmates this year than last, thus making necessary a larger appropriation. The average present in the home in 1929 was 1,524 and the average number of employees was 610.

This appropriation will be used for the year beginning July 1, 1930.

Rome Cheers Next Queen Of Italians

coat. There was a magnificent string of pearls about her neck and she carried a bouquet of white lilies.

HUMBERT DELIGHTED

The royal party rode to the palace in an open carriage. Prince Humbert, in full regalia of colonel of infantry, sat opposite Marie and smiled engagingly at the enthusiasm she aroused among his country people. At the princess' side sat her sister-in-law, the duchess of Brabant, born the Princess Astrid of Sweden.

The first carriage of the procession was occupied by King Victor Emmanuel of Italy and King Albert of Belgium. King Victor Emmanuel wore the gray-green silver bedecked uniform of an Italian marshal, while King Albert had on the gold-braided khaki of a Belgian warlord.

The two queens, Helene of Italy and Elizabeth of Belgium were in the next carriage. Queen Helene wore white, with a rich mantle of Savoy blue, and a small hat of the same color. Queen Elizabeth wore pink moire with a velvet mantle bordered with moire and fox fur, and a hat of turtledove and mauve.

The Belgian queen appeared in excellent spirits despite a recent attack of influenza. At first the crowd mistook her for Princess Marie Jose and shouted "long live the princess." She laughed delightedly. She carried a great bunch of orchids given her by Prince Humbert who met the party at Travetere station.

IN THIRD CARRIAGE

The engaged couple rode in the third carriage, after them coming a succession of vehicles manned with coachmen and footmen in red liveries and white wigs, carrying princes of the Italian house and ladies and gentlemen in waiting at the Italian and Belgian courts.

The visitors met Premier Mussolini and the ministers of the government at the palace, where the entire party attended mass in the private chapel. King Boris of Bulgaria, with his sister Eudoxia, and his brother Cyril, joined the visiting royalties for lunch after the demonstration by the crowd had subsided.

The visitors leave Rome today for a day's hunting in King Victor's game preserve at Castel Porziano. They will return this evening to witness the picturesque ceremony of changing of the guard before the Quirinal palace. There will be a reception for the princess at the Quirinal tonight.

Tomorrow there will be a few visits and some last minute shopping. The wedding will take place Wednesday morning, the young couple driving afterwards to St. Peter's to pray. Then they will be received in private audience by Pope Pius XI.

Market Becomes Quiet After Early Period of Higher Prices

New York (AP)—Trading was of a desultory and spiritless character on the curb market today. The rally late last week was carried over into the early trading, but it petered out before midday and bear pressure was renewed. The market turned extremely dull on the decline. There was nothing in the weekend news to enlive the market and the return of 4 to 2 per cent call money today was only in line with expectations.

Some of the copper shares were well bought, in response to reports that red metal buying for first quarter shipment during the past two days approximated 50,000,000 pounds, the most active demand experienced in some time. Newmont made an extreme gain of 7 points and Noranda was in fair demand.

Stutz was a buoyant spot, rising 2 to 4 points to 4 1/2, in response to announcement of the dismissal of the bankruptcy petition, later, however, it sold off a little on profit taking. The stock dropped to $1 a share when the bankruptcy petition was filed.

Utilities were firm at the opening, but soon eased. American Gas rose 3 points, then more than lost its gain. Electric Bond and Share mounted a point, then sagged. Oils followed a similar course, in less active trading. Gulf gained about 1 1/2 points, before sagging. Cities Ser-

Investment trusts were dull and easy. Goldman Sachs and Third National Investors lost about a point each. Trans-America, however, was steady.

POMP, SPLENDOR WILL ACCOMPANY ROYAL MARRIAGE

Bridal Costume Assembled from Brussels, Flanders
and Milan

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here is the first detailed "inside story" of the plans for the wedding of Princess Marie-Jose of Belgium and Crown Prince Humbert of Italy. Irene Di Robilant, here writing for Post-Crescent and NIA Service, is the daughter of General Count Di Robilant, a Senator in the Kingdom of Italy. She has served in the Italian army during the World War, and received the second highest decoration for bravery. As an author, she since has become well known in Italy.

BY IRENE DI ROBILANT
Rome—The royal cortege will not ride through the city in the traditional gilded chariots and only a few persons will see the young Prince and Princess of Piedmont as they turn away from the altar. But it will be a truly royal wedding—the bride a daughter of the rulers of Belgium, the groom the heir to the Italian throne and only son of its "Soldier King."

Pauline Chapel in the Quirinal Palace will barely accommodate royalty, foreign ambassadors and the highest dignitaries of the Papal State, so only these may witness the ceremony.

If the chapel were not so small, those who decide questions of social and official precedence would face an absolutely terrifying task. Even now controversies have arisen regarding the complicated system of ranking. For Rome now has two separate courts, the Royal and the Papal, each with its own officials, secretaries of state and aristocratic following. Every foreign country is represented by an embassy or delegation accredited to the King of Italy and many nations already have representatives at the Vatican Court.

CAPITAL TO JOIN
But all the glory and pomp of church and nation will be attendant upon the program of festivities and all Rome will have a part in the celebration.

It was Prince Humbert himself who requested the historical page of the lineage which can be traced back to 900 A. D., and only a year ago, in another such pageant, he impersonated his ancestor, the Duke of Savoy who in 1562 established the dominions of the present reigning house. Staged in honor of the bride and groom, this affair will place elaborate emphasis upon the great matrimonial alliance of the House of Savoy which has given queens to nearly every country in Europe and has received foreign brides from many of them.

Princess Marie-Jose knows Italy well; she spent four years in an Italian boarding school near Florence during the World War. She learned to speak perfect Italian and became a champion of the Italian people. From among these school-girl friends she has chosen two of the four young matrons who are to be her ladies-in-waiting and constant companions in her Italian home.

TO WED IN ROYAL STYLE
While Brussels is providing most of the bride's trousseau and Flanders the wedding veil of finest lace, the bride's gown itself is being made in Milan. White satin with velvet mantle has been chosen. It is high at the neck, has long sleeves and has an empire line at the waist.

Queen Elizabeth of Belgium supervised arrangements for the bridal gown, but her first stipulation is said to have been that it be trimmed with lace.

The bridal coat of chiffon velvet, is lined with ermine and trimmed with the emblems of the House of Savoy. This has been made in Rome, at the request, it is reported, of Prince Humbert himself.

The lingerie chosen by Marie-Jose is of pastel shades, mainly coral and salmon, with only a few articles in white. Many are richly trimmed in needle-point lace and all have been made in Belgium.

SMALL CHAPEL CHOSEN FOR WEDDING

Then they will go to the Vatican to receive the blessing of the Pope. and at the left you see the Central Nave of St. Peter's where the Prince and Princess of Piedmont will pray at the tomb of the first Apostle.

ALL HER FROCKS AREN'T LONG

The bridal gown for such a ceremony of course must be extremely long, but the princess has shown by her selection of gowns and frocks that she is not wholly in favor of the longer mode for more ordinary wear. Most of the dresses have irregular hemlines, with flaring or flounced effects.

The very long trail will be carried by the youthful children of Princess Toland, Countess Calvi and Princess Mafalda, Duchess of Hesse. When Marie-Jose goes to the altar on the arm of her father, her face will be veiled and the veil held by a diadem, the gift of Prince Humbert. This is in the form of an orange flower wreath, set with pearls and diamonds. After the wedding, it will be made into a formal headdress for state occasions.

Ladies of the royal cortege will be dressed in white, with long sleeves, their hair covered by veils with diamants. Even the guests must wear veils.

Soon after his return from Belgium the Prince went to Rome to plan the details of the wedding with his mother, Queen Helena. Included in the councils were Monsignor Borgoncini Duca, Apostolic Ambassador of the Pope. Prince Humbert is very pious; one of his first acts after attaining his majority was to visit the Holy Land, following the trails of the Crusaders.

PRINCE BLESSED, TOO

When the King of Italy visited the Pope, a special blessing was sent to the Prince of Piedmont, who in turn went with his two younger sisters, Princesses Giovanna and Maria, to receive the Papal blessing.

Now that the Pope once more is on speaking terms with the grandsons of the king whom Pope Pius IX excommunicated as an usurper in 1870, a Cardinal, Prince of the Roman Church, will officiate at the ceremony in Pauline Chapel. He is Cardinal Maffi, Archbishop of Pisa, whom all Italy remembers as having pronounced a Te Deum in the Cathedral of Pisa when the armistice was proclaimed. There he lauded the virtues and bravery of the "Soldier King," an unusual tribute from a church official.

While this ceremony will vastly increase the religious glamor of the event, the reconciliation of Church and State has so enlarged the invitation lists that the selection and handling of guests has been a real problem. Full recognition has been given to Papal titles, so that the much-discussed questions of precedence have to be gone over and over—and this with the conviction that, after all, no one will be satisfied with the decisions.

Pauline Chapel solves the matter partly, for its size will not permit a large number of guests. However, it opens into the great white ball room, where many other guests will be seated on stands. There they will be able to watch the procession as it moves into the chapel and emerges after the ceremony.

In the choice of the church and arrangement of the religious ceremony—the only one required since the signing of the Concordat—the Prince was anxious to have the approval of the ecclesiastical authorities as well as the royal families.

Announcement first was made that the ceremony would take place in the Basilica of St. Peter's, and be performed in the presence of the Pope. But friends and advisors observed that this greatest of temples is in the center of the Vatican City, therefore not on Italian territory, and that the marriage to the heir is a matter of national interest.

Santa Maria degli Angeli, the lovely church designed by Michelangelo, and in which the present King of Italy was married to Princess Helena of Montenegro, was considered. But now under its vaults lies buried General Diaz, famed war hero, and Prince Humbert declined to allow so joyous an affair as a wedding to take place there.

TO BE A FAMILY WEDDING

So they finally decided to make it as nearly as possible a family affair, and the Quirinal Palace was selected. Since 1870 this has been the home of Italy's rulers; prior to that time it was the summer residence of the Popes.

The Prince has invited the soldiers of his regiment to be his guests in Rome for the wedding, and to both officers and men all the services of guard and escort will be entrusted within the Quirinal walls.

No reception will follow the wedding, but on the evening before Roman society will have an opportunity to greet the Princess at a great royal function for which more than 2,000 invitations have been issued.

BREAKFAST TO BE GIVEN

After a wedding breakfast on Wednesday, Jan. 8, the ceremony will be performed in the chapel, and then the bride pair will step onto the balcony overlooking the Piazza, there to greet the throngs gathered to wish them well. Still wearing her bridal gown, the Princess of Piedmont and her husband will go to the Vatican to receive the blessing of the Pope. Within the Great Church of St. Peter they will spend a few moments in prayer at the tomb of the first Apostle.

All Roman monuments will be illuminated that night. Squads of architects and artists have planned the lighting of the Imperial Forums. Then, from the Pincian Hill, perhaps the world's greatest display of fireworks will give the last fantastic touch to Rome's eventful day.

APPOINT NEW NURSE TO WORK ON RESERVATION

Word was received Saturday by Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, that the state health department has appointed a nurse to take charge of health work on the Oneida Indian reservation this winter. The nurse, Miss Nell McLaughlin, will arrive in Appleton within 10 or 14 days, for a conference with Miss Klein regarding work that had already been done on the reservation. Miss McLaughlin is one of three nurses with the state department of health which devote their full time to health work among the Indians. Miss McLaughlin will work with the Oneida Indians during the winter. During the summer she will have charge of health work among the Winnebago Indians in northern Wisconsin.

WARNS OF ICEBERGS

Montreal—A method to detect icebergs at a distance of six or seven miles has been devised here by Dr. Howard T. Barnes of McGill University. The instrument detects the explosion of disintegrating icebergs by means of a waterproof microphone lowered into the water.

Candy Not Forbidden TO THE FAT

No need to deny yourself all good things because you are overweight. Modern physicians do not advise starvation. They know the dangers of it. They know that people who are over-fat have generally an under-active gland. So they supply the factor, for lack of which too much food goes to fat.

This modern method is the basis of Marmola prescription tablets. These tablets were perfected, and are prepared, by a famous medical laboratory. A book in each box states the formula and explains the reasons for results.

For 22 years Marmola has held the top place in its field. Millions of boxes have been used in fighting fat. The people who gained new youth and beauty, new health and vigor, have told others. Now the results are seen everywhere. Excess fat has largely disappeared.

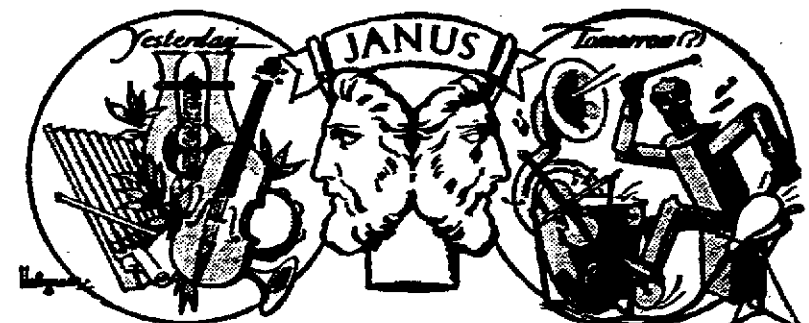

There is usually no excuse for an abnormal figure and the dangers which go with it. If the cause is an under-active gland, Marmola is the right way to combat it. For 22 years, countless people have been learning what it does.

Go try Marmola and learn what they have learned. Read the book in the box, then do as directed. Take four tablets a day. When you see that results are coming, go on and complete them. You owe that to your future. Start today.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is out will gladly order for you.

EVERY day—night and morning—cleanse your skin with Cleansing Cream. Wipe gently with tissues, then pat with a pad of absorbent cotton wrung out in cold water and saturated with Skin Tonic. Do this faithfully and your skin will not only be healthy and naturally lovely, but will stay young and fresh indefinitely. For complete instructions consult Miss Arden's little book "The Quest of the Beautiful," which your local shop will be glad to give you on request.
